Moscow-Bonn War Of Words Grows Hotter

West Germany Rejects Fresh Atom Warning

— BONN, Germany, May 5 (AP)—The Soviet Union drove a new note of urgency today into the war of words between Moscow and Bonn with a fresh warning against arming West German troops with atomic weapons.

To equip West German soldiers with A-weapons, the Soviet Union said, would lead to "grave consequences."

The Bonn government instantly labeled the Soviet message "unsatisfactory" and said the Soviet Union would better serve the cause of peace by agreeing to controlled disarmament rather than by continuing to threaten the Western Allies.

Aimed At Adenauer

The new message, as the others recently dispatched by Moscow, appeared aimed—at least in part—at thwarting Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's bid for re-election in September. Adenauer is clearly in trouble over the atomic issue and the Soviet Union appears ready to give him no rest on the subject.

The recently concluded Bonn conference of the North Atlantic foreign ministers helped boost Adenauer's prestige. But in some quarters there were cautious predictions the whole thing might boom.

The opposition Socialists kept up a steady drumfire of attack against the conference and Adenauer. They call the NATO session a "fiasco," assailed the ministers for accepting nuclear weapons as a major deterrent and declared nothing was done to solve the German reunification problem.

Adenauer, Macmillan To Meet

Thus, Adenauer has been moved swiftly to the defensive again. He has a good chance, however, to add to his stature in conferences this week with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The new Russian note was a polite one. It was delivered yesterday while Adenauer was conferring with U. S. Secretary of State Dulles. Its contents were disclosed in a Moscow radio broadcast today.

Syrian Leftists Election Victors

DAMASCUS, Syria, May 5 (AP)—Pro-Egyptian leftists defeated a new anti-Communist coalition today in three special elections for Parliament.

Government-backed leftist candidates won seats in the 142-member Parliament formerly held by rightists who have been jailed for plotting revolution.

In Damascus, the winner was Riad el Maliki, 32, who campaigned on a platform of all-out support for Egypt and condemnation of the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine. He got 20,929 votes and rightwinger Mustafa Sibai 18,457.

In Homs in central Syria, backers of rightist publisher Said Tellaway conceded defeat by leftist Jamal Kaledieb before the count was finished.

In Suweida, capital of the Jebel Druz area in the south, leftist Sayah Abou Asali beat his rightist opponent, Sitan Nasser, 3,671 to 2,160.

To observers it was clear the leftist victories were brought by superior organization and efficiency in getting out the vote.

Dr. Joseph Kennedy, Noted Scientist, Dies

ST. LOUIS, May 5 (AP)—Cancer claimed the life today of Dr. Joseph W. Kennedy, 40, one of four scientists who discovered the element plutonium, essential in making atomic bombs.

Dr. Kennedy, chairman of the department of chemistry at Washington University in St. Louis, had been in ill health since last fall.

He died at his home in suburban Ladue.

Policy Abroad Seen Top '58 Issue By Adlai

Stevenson Expects 'Substantial' Demo Victory Next Year

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said today that next year's battle for control of Congress may be decided on the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956, made it clear he believes that if foreign policy is the principal issue—as he expects it will be—the Democrats will retain their control of both Senate and House.

He said also that Democratic prospects will be helped along by GOP "tight money" policies, particularly in the West.

But Stevenson left no doubt in an interview that he believes the current Democratic fusillade against the foreign policies of Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles will be the prime factor in what he predicted will be a "substantial" victory for his party next year.

People "Deeply Disturbed"

"As I see it," he said, "the people now are deeply disturbed by what they regard as an effort of the Republicans to place domestic matters above all others in their consideration of world problems."

"These Republicans are the people who didn't understand the importance of the Suez Canal to Britain and France. They didn't understand the importance of Britain and France to the Middle East crisis."

"It was only the Middle East crisis that saved Eisenhower and the Republican ticket in many places in the last year's election. It appears that the world is not likely to be done with crises but I believe the people have come to recognize how some of them have been created."

Harriman's View

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, who vied with Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination last year, took a somewhat different view of the 1958 campaign.

Harriman, questioned here in an ABC-TV interview—"College News Conference"—also listed "tight money" as one of the items which he expects to be an issue next year. But he did not mention foreign policy in this connection.

Tommy Manville Takes 10th Bride

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—Thomas F. Manville Jr., 63, stooped and gray but sparkling with eye, took his 10th bride today and married into a family of tall Texans.

The tallest of the Texans was gorgeous blonde Patricia (Pat) Gaston, 27, who retired from the chorus of the "Ziegfeld Follies" last week to become the newest Mrs. Manville.

As they stood to take the vows before Judge Mitchell Schweitzer, of General Sessions Court, in a flower-decked room off the ballroom of the Hotel Pierre on Fifth Avenue, Manville's bride towered almost a head above him.

Like all her fellow chorus girls in the Follies, the beautiful Pat is just a shade under 6 feet. Her bridegroom, even in the days when he could stand up straight, didn't top 5 feet 6.

Story Of 1934 Nazi Purge Will Be Unfolded At Trial

MUNICH, Germany, May 5 (AP)—The story of the Nazi "blood bath" purge in 1934—which claimed the lives of more than 200 people—will unfold here tomorrow. The trial of former SS Col. Gen. Joseph (Sepp) Dietrich opens before the Munich State Court.

Dietrich, a veteran Nazi, was commander of the elite guard troops blamed for the 1944 Malmedy massacre of 142 captured American soldiers. His release on parole in October 1955 from a 25-year war crimes term drew strong protests from American veterans organizations.

Tomorrow's trial, which took almost seven years to prepare, reaches back 10 years beyond that wartime massacre. Dietrich is formally charged with six counts of assisting in manslaughter. The charges arise from the execution without trial of six general officers of the Nazi Stormtroopers—SA—organization. Adolf Hitler claimed they were planning a putsch to overthrow his regime for a "Fourth Reich."

Dietrich, now 65 and an employee in a lumber firm, was the commanding officer of the SS bodyguard battalion from which the execution squad was made up. Codefendant is Michael Lippert, former SS major general, who was granted amnesty by the Dutch in 1953 after serving part of a 10-year war crimes term imposed in connection with the shooting of Dutch civilians. Lippert, 60, is accused of having assisted in the shooting of Ernst Roehm, commander-in-chief of the 4½-million-strong SA in a Stadelheim prison cell.

Truman Says Wife 'Gave Me Hell' For Remark About Ike

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Harry Truman, exponent of the give-hell technique, said today he got a dose of the same from "the boss"—Mrs. Truman—for suggesting that President Eisenhower doesn't spend enough time in Washington.

The former President told reporters who accompanied him on an early morning walk yesterday that, "You guys would have fried and boiled me in oil if I'd spent that much time away from the White House."

Today he told strolling newsmen that his wife "gave me hell" for this remark.

But Truman went on to criticize Eisenhower anew, saying no one is more disappointed in the present administration than he is.

In view of Eisenhower's "background and experience," Truman said, he had "expected something different."

Still, his comments were more restrained than yesterday's, which drew a suggestion from James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, that "the record" on days away from the White House should be studied.

Schaerf Elected Austria Leader

VIENNA, May 5 (AP)—Adolf Schaerf, Socialist vice chancellor in the coalition Conservative-Socialist government, was elected president of Austria today.

The 67-year-old leader defeated Dr. Wolfgang Denk, 75, in complete, unofficial returns.

Schaerf received 2,259,097 votes, Denk 2,160,424.

The election was as quiet as the campaign, distinguished chiefly by the nice things Schaerf and Denk said about each other. They found few issues to differ about.

Schaerf is the country's third Socialist president since World War II. He is staunchly anti-Communist.

Denk is a noted Catholic surgeon and head of Austria's cancer Research Institute.

Schaerf, who comes from a worker family and paid for his university education by tutoring children of well-to-do families, scored heavily in the cities, and ran strong in many rural conservative areas.

Schaerf takes the six year term as president, succeeding Theodor Korner, second president of the Austrian postwar republic, who died in office last January at the age of 83.

Italy's Coalition Regime Threatened

ROME, May 5 (AP)—A majority group of the right-wing Social Democrats, main supporters of Italy's coalition government, called tonight for the party to walk out of the Cabinet.

Delegates voted unanimously to press for the walkout when the full party congress meets next month.

The move would spell the downfall of the three-year-old government of Premier Antonio Segni's Christian Democrats, and bring on new national elections.

Red Torture Forced Priest To 'Confess'

Father Gross Tells Of Brutal Beatings While Held In China

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5 (AP)—A Catholic priest released six weeks ago by Chinese Communists after six years in prison told for the first time today of brutal beatings that forced him to confess falsely he was an American spy.

"I confessed, yes, I did," the Rev. Fulgence Gross told a news conference here.

In Hong Kong a month ago he had declined to talk about the spying charge. He said then he expected to be "dogged by Communists everywhere I go."

"After three days and nights of beatings with sticks, straps and fists, and with a sword being held at my neck and being told I would die if I did not confess, I said 'Sure, I am a spy,'" the priest related today.

Captive Priests Defended

Out of his torture experience, Father Gross, a Franciscan missionary from Omaha, Neb., who has spent 18 years in China, said it was humanly impossible to withstand the pressures of Communist interrogation.

"About these American fliers in Korea, these prisoners in Korea, I want to say the same thing for them," said Father Gross.

"I don't know all the circumstances, but I haven't got much use for these people in this country who condemned the American prisoners in Korea for their confessions."

"Fattened Up" For Release

"I would say let those who condemn go to China and experience just three months of interrogation. Then they would understand that those methods of interrogation force you to make confessions that you know are nonsensical."

He said he did not have any chance during six years in Chinese prisons in Tsingtao and Shanghai to learn real facts of how the Chinese people fare under the Peiping regime.

After 4½ years in jail, he was sentenced to a six-year term, with credit for interrogation time. He then was taken to Shanghai, he said, and "fattened up" for his release.

Shelley Winters, Franciosa Wed

CARSON CITY, Nev., May 5 (AP)—Shirley Schriff and Anthony Franciosa were married last night by a justice of the peace who had no idea that the bride and groom were Actress Shelley Winters and actor Anthony Franciosa.

"It was just another wedding and I didn't tumble to who they were until today," said Justice of the Peace Dan Murphy of the five-minute ceremony in his home.

Miss Winters, 34, and Franciosa, 28—principals in a recent news-making fracas—came to Murphy with a license issued in their non-professional and real names. Witnesses with them were Stanley Kamen and Leonard Hirshan. A reception followed at the Mapes Hotel in Reno, Nev.

It was the third marriage for Miss Winters. The 34-year-old blonde actress formerly was married to Mack P. Mayer, a Chicago textile salesman, and Italian actor Vittorio Gassman. Both unions ended in divorce.

Largest Mass Evacuation Test Ever Attempted In Nation Goes Smoothly

DEPOSIT, N.Y., May 5 (AP)—A mass evacuation of 1,448 men, women and children from the city of Binghamton turned into a Sunday picnic today in this peaceful, rural village.

The Civil Defense test, largest ever attempted in the nation, was designed to help officials in their planning for dangers of the H-bomb arch.

Raoul Archambault, executive assistant to the federal Civil Defense administrator, said afterward the exercise would be "cited across the land as a demonstration of the type of thing that can be done. It refutes the talk of apathy to civil defense in America."

The evacuation was accomplished by automobile, train and bus.

The 28-mile trip over a winding, mountainous road from Binghamton went off without a hitch, even though about 200 automobiles in the cavalcade traveled without restriction, as though the occupants were panic-stricken.

The train carried 110 persons, among them adults who posed as "litter cases" and "children" separated from their parents.

In Deposit, a village of 2,000 population, raid wardens steered the evacuees to the many homes that had opened their doors.

For instance, a mother and father and their five lively, tow-headed children moved into the three-bedroom home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gruscavage and their two children.

Mrs. Gruscavage, wife of a dairy driver for a dairy, greeted the

Senate Action Due This Week On Postal Funds

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Robertson (D-Va.) said today he does not expect the Senate Appropriations Committee to restore all of the House cut in funds for the Post Office Department in the year ahead.

The committee plans to vote this week on the money bill carrying funds for the Post Office and Treasury departments.

Its action will be closely watched since this is the first of the appropriations measures for fiscal 1958 to come before the Senate group this session. Fiscal 1958 starts July 1.

So far the House has made reductions totaling about $1,200,000,000 in the eight new appropriation bills on which it has acted. The eight bills carried administration requests for nearly 15 billion dollars. In the past the Senate frequently has canceled much of the House cuts.

Bill Tough To Slash

The Treasury-Post Office bill, carrying $3,884,927,000 this year, is difficult to cut. That is because most of the postal money is for salaries of mail clerks and deliverymen, and most of the Treasury money is for the Coast Guard and salaries in the Internal Revenue Service.

The bill has attracted added interest this year because of the reduction in postal service which may result if the 58-million-dollar cut voted by the House for the Post Office Department is not restored.

Postmaster General Summerfield, testifying before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee headed by Robertson, said he needed every penny of the 58 million put back in the bill.

Service Cuts Threatened

If it is not restored, he said he would have to make service cuts of the same kind which he put into effect briefly last month in a dispute over funds for the current fiscal year.

In that row, Summerfield told Congress he had to have 47 million dollars to finish out the year ending June 30. When it was not immediately forthcoming, he eliminated Saturday home deliveries and some other services.

The lawmakers gave him 41 million, and he restored practically all of the normal postal service.

The village high school served as general headquarters, where medical treatment, food and other services were available.

The exercise, tabbed "Evac 12," had been worked out to the small detail over a year-long period by the New York Civil Defense Commission, in cooperation with local officials.

Party Council Assails Lack Of Leadership

New Group Scores Handling Of Foreign And Fiscal Affairs

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Democratic Advisory Council organized today and approved statements blasting the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign and fiscal affairs and opposing enactment of a federal "right-to-work" law.

Former President Truman and titular party leader Adlai E. Stevenson attended the more than three-hour private session of the 24-member group. The council, a creation of the Democratic National Committee, was authorized last Friday to formulate party policy statements within the bounds of the party platform.

Lack Of Leadership Charged

On foreign affairs, the council agreed unanimously on a statement saying the nation has lacked leadership from the executive branch and declaring:

"The Eisenhower-Dulles administration of our foreign affairs has substituted improvisations for policy, appeasement for leadership, posturing for deeds and advertising slogans for information." The 250-word statement was drafted by a subcommittee and revised during debate.

Another unanimously approved statement, offered by Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, said measures taken by what it called this "big business administration" to halt inflation have "completely misfired." It supported announced intentions of Democratic congressional leaders to consider tax relief for lower income groups and small business.

Southern Opposition

With two Southern women members opposing, the council approved a third statement, proposed by Paul Ziffren, California national committee member, saying it "regrets" efforts being made to enact federal "right-to-work" legislation. Such laws, now in force in 18 states, forbid labor-management agreements requiring persons to join a union to obtain and hold a job. These laws are condemned in the party platform.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, who announced the council's actions, said Mrs. Lennard Thomas of Alabama, and Mrs. Benjamin B. Everett of North Carolina, opposed the Ziffren proposal.

Butler said no one present attempted to relate the statement on "right-to-work" legislation to a move by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) to add a "right-to-work" amendment to pending civil rights legislation.

Capital Airline Strike Averted

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—A threatened walkout of 2,200 mechanics and ground personnel of Capital Airlines was averted early today when the airline and the International Assn. of Machinists agreed on a new one-year contract.

Francis A. O'Neill, member of the National Mediation Board who sat in on the company-union talks said the new contract calls for hourly wage increases of 19, 21 and 24 cents in various categories. Present pay scales vary widely from job to job.

The negotiators had been in almost continuous session here since Thursday afternoon.

A strike, which would have halted or drastically curbed Capital's operations, had been called for midnight Friday but was put off to permit further negotiations.

Policy Abroad Seen Top '58 Issue By Adlai

Stevenson Expects 'Substantial' Demo Victory Next Year

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said today that next year's battle for control of Congress may be decided on the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy.

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956, made it clear he believes that if foreign policy is the principal issue—as he expects it will be—the Democrats will retain their control of both Senate and House.

"These Republicans are the people who didn't understand the importance of the Suez Canal to Britain and France. They didn't understand the importance of Britain and France to us. Therefore, they precipitated the Middle East crisis."

"It was only the Middle East crisis that saved Eisenhower and the Republican ticket in many places in the last year's election. It appears that the world is not likely to be done with crises but I believe the people have come to recognize how some of them have been created."

CARSON CITY, Nev., May 5 (AP)—Shirley Schrift and Anthony Palapao were married last night by a justice of the peace who had no idea that the bride and groom were Actress Shelley Winters and actor Anthony Franciosa.

"It was just another wedding and I didn't tumble to who they were until today," said Justice of the Peace Dan Murphy of the five-minute ceremony in his home.

Miss Winters, 34, and Franciosa, 28—principals in a recent news-making fracas—came to Murphy with a license issued in their non-professional and real names. With names with them were Stanley Kamen and Leonard Hirshan. A reception followed at the Mapes Hotel in Reno, Nev.

It was the third marriage for Miss Winters. The 34-year-old blonde actress formerly was married to Mack P. Mayer, a Chicago textile salesman, and Italian actor Vittorio Gassman. Both unions ended in divorce.

Largest Mass Evacuation Test Ever Attempted In Nation Goes Smoothly

DEPOSIT, N.Y., May 5 (AP)—A mass evacuation of 1,448 men, women and children from the city of Binghamton turned into a Sunday picnic today in this peaceful, rural village.

The Civil Defense test, largest ever attempted in the nation, was designed to help officials in their planning for dangers of the H-bomb age.

Raoul Archambault, executive assistant to the federal Civil Defense administrator, said after the exercise would be "cited across the land as a demonstration of the type of thing that can be done. It refutes the talk of apathy to civil defense in America."

The evacuation was accomplished by automobile, train and bus.

The 28-mile trip over a winding, mountainous road from Binghamton went off without a hitch, even though about 200 automobiles in the cavalcade traveled without restriction, as though the occupants were panic-stricken.

The train carried 110 persons, among them adults who posed as "litter cases" and "children" separated from their parents.

In Deposit, a village of 2,000 population, raid wardens steered the evacuees to the many homes that had opened their doors.

For instance, a mother and father and their five lively, tow-headed children moved into the three-bedroom home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gruscavage and their two children.

Mrs. Gruscavage, wife of a driver for a dairy, greeted the

Senate Action Due This Week On Postal Funds

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—Sen. Robertson (D-Va.) said today he does not expect the Senate Appropriations Committee to restore all of the House cut in funds for the Post Office Department in the year ahead.

The committee plans to vote this week on the money bill carrying funds for the Post Office and Treasury departments.

Its action will be closely watched since this is the first of the appropriations measures for fiscal 1958 to come before the Senate group this session. Fiscal 1958 starts July 1.

So far the House has made reductions totaling about $1,200,000 in the eight new appropriation bills on which it has acted. The eight bills carried administration requests for nearly 15 billion dollars. In the past the Senate frequently has canceled much of the House cuts.

Bill Tough To Slash
The Treasury-Post Office bill, carrying $3,894,927,000 this year, is difficult to cut. That is because most of the postal money is for salaries of mail clerks and deliverymen, and most of the Treasury money is for the Coast Guard and salaries in the Internal Revenue Service.

The bill has attracted added interest this year because of the reduction in postal service which may result if the 58-million-dollar cut voted by the House for the Post Office Department is not restored.

Postmaster General Summerfield, testifying before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee headed by Robertson, said he needed every penny of the 58 million put back in the bill.

Service Cuts Threatened
If it is not restored, he said he would have to make service cuts of the same kind which he put into effect briefly last month in a dispute over funds for the current fiscal year.

In that row, Summerfield told Congress he had to have 47 million dollars to finish out the year ending June 30. When it was not immediately forthcoming, he eliminated Saturday home deliveries and some other services.

The lawmakers gave him 41 million, and he restored practically all of the normal postal service.

Francis A. O'Neill, member of the National Mediation Board who sat in on the company-union talks said the new contract calls for hourly wage increases of 19, 21 and 24 cents in various categories. Present pay scales vary widely from job to job.

The negotiators had been in almost continuous session here since Thursday afternoon.

A strike, which would have halted or drastically curbed Capital's operations, had been called for midnight Friday but was put off to permit further negotiations.

Party Council Assails Lack Of Leadership

New Group Scores Handling Of Foreign And Fiscal Affairs

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—The Democratic Advisory Council organized today and approved statements blasting the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign and fiscal affairs and opposing enactment of a federal "right-to-work" law.

Former President Truman and titular party leader Adlai E. Stevenson attended the more than three-hour private session of the 24-member group. The council, a creation of the Democratic National Committee, was authorized last Friday to formulate party policy statements within the bounds of the party platform.

Lack Of Leadership Charged

On foreign affairs, the council agreed unanimously on a statement saying the nation has lacked leadership from the executive branch and declaring:

"The Eisenhower-Dulles administration of our foreign affairs has substituted improvisations for policy, appeasement for leadership, posturing for deeds and advertising slogans for information." The 250-word statement was drafted by a subcommittee and revised during debate.

Another unanimously approved statement, offered by Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, said measures taken by what it called this "big business administration" to halt inflation have "completely misfired." It supported announced intentions of Democratic congressional leaders to consider tax relief for lower income groups and small business.

Southern Opposition

With two Southern women members opposing, the council approved a third statement, proposed by Paul Ziffren, California national committeeman, saying it "regrets" efforts being made to enact federal "right-to-work" legislation. Such laws, now in force in 18 states, forbid labor-management agreements requiring persons to join a union to obtain and hold a job. These laws are condemned in the party platform.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler, who announced the council's actions, said Mrs. Lennard Thomas of Alabama, and Mrs. Benjamin B. Everett of North Carolina, opposed the Ziffren proposal.

Butler said no one present attempted to relate the statement on "right-to-work" legislation to a move by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) to add a "right-to-work" amendment to pending civil rights legislation.

Capital Airline Strike Averted

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—A threatened walkout of 2,200 mechanics and ground personnel of Capital Airlines was averted early today when the airline and the International Assn. of Machinists agreed on a new one-year contract.

Francis A. O'Neill, member of the National Mediation Board who sat in on the company-union talks said the new contract calls for hourly wage increases of 19, 21 and 24 cents in various categories. Present pay scales vary widely from job to job.

The negotiators had been in almost continuous session here since Thursday afternoon.

A strike, which would have halted or drastically curbed Capital's operations, had been called for midnight Friday but was put off to permit further negotiations.

Nicaragua Leader Agrees To Truce

Somoza Reportedly Accepts OAS Plan

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 5 (AP)—President Luis Somoza has agreed to a cease-fire on the border with Honduras, Nicaraguan officials said tonight.

Somoza, they said, has accepted a plan of the Organization of American States (OAS) peace mission calling for withdrawal of both Nicaraguan and Honduran forces from the frontier and creation of a buffer zone.

The plan also provides that the OAS council in Washington should rule within four days whether Nicaragua or Honduras was the aggressor in last week's eruption of their old border conflict, they reported.

The Honduran government is believed already to have given the OAS peace committee its tacit acceptance of the plan.

The OAS ambassadors came here a day earlier than expected and are to return to Honduras tomorrow.

They moved swiftly to complete their task because of continued fighting in the disputed border zone and a Nicaraguan warning of war.

Somoza told the mission at a 90-minute conference he had received an unconfirmed report that Honduran troops attacked Totocintate, a Nicaraguan town in a zone not under dispute.

Somoza, 36-year-old successor to his assassinated father, Gen. Anastasio Somoza, told reporters yesterday, "if these attacks continue it will mean war."

Gen. Anastasio Somoza Jr., Nicaraguan army chief, was present during the conference of the OAS envoys with his brother.

They showed the peace group rifles, grenades and helmets which they said had been captured from Honduran troops at Mocoron.

Soggy Texas Welcomes Sun

DALLAS, May 5 (AP)—A bright sun covered Texas today and for the first time in 18 days flood-weary Texans could look at the sky without seeing a rain cloud.

At Wichita Falls, where Holliday Creek and Wichita Lake flooded streets and forced dozens of families from their homes, police Sgt. A. M. Davenport said, "The peak has passed. It's just clear and sun-shiny as could be."

Davenport said, "The water is going down. Not all the folks are back in their homes yet. But they will be tomorrow." He said the creek and the lake were falling.

The threat to a million-dollar bridge across the Brazos River in central Texas appeared to have passed today. Highway engineers were said to have expected the bridge to be washed away by two rises in the river.

Patrolman J. W. Barton at Cleburne, near the bridge, said the river rose 18 inches in 12 hours "but the water is still feet under the bridge."

The state estimated the floods caused five million dollars damage to government facilities and President Eisenhower allocated one million dollars for the repair of public property.

Atom War Games Get Under Way

ABOARD USS FORRESTAL in the Mediterranean, May 5 (AP)—Operation Green Pivot, theoretical version of the world's first big atomic war, begins at midnight Sunday with planes, troops and warships of five nations locked in an imaginary struggle for northern Italy.

The operation will take a four-day slice out of the "war" which began the last week of March with an atomic strike by "Red" enemy forces against friendly "Blue" powers.

The purpose of the exercise, in which the 6th Fleet joined after its lightning-like return from a flag-showing mission to the eastern Mediterranean, is to train both sides in actual conditions of atomic war.

ACLU Charges Censorship By Catholic Group

NEW YORK, May 5 (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union said today a Roman Catholic group is actively engaged in "censorship of what the American people may read."

The ACLU statement said the actions of the National Organization for Decent Literature are "seriously violative of the principle of freedom."

The ACLU said more than 150 prominent figures in the fields of publishing, literature and the arts signed the statement. They included novelists James T. Farrell and John O'Hara, playwright Arthur Miller, theologian Reinhold Niebuhr and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widow of the President.

"There are other religious organizations, as well as racial, labor, parent-teachers and women's groups, who also engage in censorship activity," the ACLU said, "but our attention . . . is focused on the NODL because of the prominence it has achieved and the great influence it has wielded in removing books from circulation."

The ACLU said the NODL uses a "reading community of mothers of the Roman Catholic faith in the Chicago area" to evaluate literature as to its suitability for youth.

The NODL has "prepared blacklists, threatened and imposed general boycotts and awarded unofficial certificates of compliance," the statement said.

The ACLU said works by Nobel Prize winners Ernest Hemingway and William Faulkner are among those on the banned list.

"A fundamental objection to these extended activities of the NODL," said the statement, "is that the judgment of a particular group is being imposed upon the freedom of choice of the whole community."

'Sad Sam' Stuck In Balloon As Bailout Devices Fail

NEW BRIGHTON, Minn., May 5 (AP)—A big, shimmering balloon

rose to 90,000 feet over southern Minnesota to test high altitude parachute equipment for the Air Force today, but stubbornly refused to drop its cargo.

The 275-foot plastic bag, sent aloft at dawn by General Mills, Inc., in a preview of this summer's manned Air Force "high-diver" bailout project over New Mexico, carried a specially built gondola and a dummy named "Sad Sam."

Two systems designed to drop the dummy and the gondola failed. Tracking crews in trucks, planes and helicopters then decided to wait for cool night air in hope the balloon would come down.

The balloon floated lazily over Faribault and Red Wing, Minn., from midmorning to late afternoon, traveling southward a distance of only 50-60 miles from its launching site at this Minneapolis suburb.

Four hours after takeoff, technicians tried to release the dummy parachutist by remote control, but the equipment failed. An automatic timeclock device in the "Wandering Wigwag" gondola also failed to trigger Sad Sam's release.

A General Mills spokesman said tracking equipment was stowed at Owatonna, Minn., and technicians would attempt to track the balloon during the night by radar.

He said winds tonight probably would cause the balloon to drift southward, possibly over northern Iowa. The spokesman added that while the helium-filled bag likely would descend at night, it prob-

Body Of Sailor Missing In Ship Sinking Found

VIENNA, Md., May 5 (AP)—The body of Pete Drinkwater, 64-year-old deckhand on the ill-fated freighter Sara C. Conway, was found in the Nanticoke River near here early today.

Drinkwater had been missing since the grain-filled freighter sank early Thursday after being rammed by a tug-pushed barge. The ship and 5,600 bushels of corn sank in about 50 feet of water near the bridge which carries U.S. 50 over the river.

Members of the tug Ghetto, out of Virginia, spotted the body about 5 a.m., approximately one mile northeast of where the Conway went down.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph Kiopp said tug members notified bridge tender Wallace Davenport, who in turn enlisted the aid of waterman Roy Hurley. Using Hurley's boat, the two men retrieved the body from the river.

Capt. Calvert Evans, skipper of the Conway, identified the body as that of Drinkwater and it was sent to a Cambridge funeral home. Dr. John Mace, Dorchester County medical examiner, said the cause of death was drowning.

Kiopp said relatives of Drinkwater in Elizabeth City, N. C. have been notified. He said they planned to have the body shipped to North Carolina for burial.

Sam Abrahams, a diver from Baltimore, searched the wreckage of the ship Thursday and Friday for the body. He said it would be impossible to float the small, wooden ship. The sunken hull is not blocking the channel of the river which separates Wicomico and Dorchester counties.

Contractor, 67 Guests Return From Sweden

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—A big-hearted contractor and his 67 guests ended their flying round trip to Sweden today with a prayer and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Ragnar Benson and his party filed out of their airliner at Midway Airport. Then they gathered near the plane in the peace and brilliance of a sunny Sunday morning in spring and lifted their voices in the national anthem.

One of the voyagers, the Rev. Theodore E. Palmer, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church in Chicago, offered a prayer of gratitude, thanking God for guiding the travelers over land and sea in safety and perfect health.

And everybody went home with pleasant, enduring memories of a three-week tour.

Benson, a wealthy man, footed the bill—estimated at about $30,000.

Like Nightmare Floodwaters Suck Family Of Four Through Culvert

ATLANTA, May 5 (AP)—Their Florida vacation is off, but the Tyndale family isn't complaining. They're thankful just to be alive.

For a few terrifying minutes, the Tyndales and their two young children fought death in a nightmare of darkness and swift, swirling waters.

All four were snatched under by flash flood waters and sucked through a 42-inch steel culvert beneath a railroad track. All escaped with cuts and bruises.

"I know now how it feels to drown," Tyndale said. "And believe me, your life really does flash in front of your eyes."

The Tyndales were bound for a Florida vacation when they ran into a cloudburst Friday night just south of Nashville, Ga., on U.S. 129. The sudden downpour forced them to stop the car with about 10 other stalled motorists.

"Suddenly the car moved sideways and we saw water coming in through the floorboards," Tyndale related. "I tried to open the door but the water was nearly to the windows and I couldn't get it open. The car was setting fast. We each grabbed one of the kids and dived headfirst out the windows."

Clinging to the car, Tyndale had to remove a leg brace he wears as a result of a polio attack five years ago.

"Bill always said if he fell in the water that would be the first thing he would do," Mrs. Tyndale said. "We held to the car until the front end began to sink and we decided to try to swim back to the highway. He took Nancy, 7, because she is the biggest. I held Billy, 5, and we struck out."

Unable to see in the darkness and heavy rain, the Tyndales did not know they were swimming toward the railroad culvert where tons of rainwater gurgled madly in a strong whirlpool.

The strong suction snatched them. "That was the most brutal force I've ever experienced," said Tyndale, a 31-year-old Atlanta construction engineer. "We were swept into the culvert, tumbling end over end under water, banging against the side, and then we were spewed out the other side. We didn't know if we were alive or dead, or where we were."

"At the time," his 27-year-old wife said today, "it—the culvert—seemed the most horrible thing in the world. But we're sure now it saved our lives. We couldn't have survived in the deep water. The children were fighting us. But we were sucked through the culvert to shallow water."

Dick Walter, a member of the Valdosta Tigers baseball team, who was on his honeymoon, heard Mrs. Tyndale's shouts for help. He ducked off his clothes and swam to the aid of Tyndale and Nancy.

Bogota Police Use Tear Gas On Crowds

BOGOTA, Colombia, May 5 (AP)—Police broke up demonstrations with tear gas and streams of dyed water today, interrupting mass in a church where a priest renewed his attacks on the government.

The action shattered the brief calm in Bogota that followed Saturday's student anti-government outbreaks.

Opposition to plans to have President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla re-elected by a constituent assembly has caused pronounced unrest.

Police threw tear gas shells at a crowd around the church where the Rev. Theodoro Velazquez renewed attacks on the government that marked his holy week sermons.

The congregation applauded his belligerent tone and sang the national anthem. Father Velazquez told his congregation no one could keep him from speaking freely.

Nicaragua Leader Agrees To Truce

Somoza Reportedly Accepts OAS Plan

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 5 (AP)—President Luis Somoza has agreed to a cease-fire on the border with Honduras, Nicaraguan officials said tonight.

Somoza, they said, has accepted a plan of the Organization of American States (OAS) peace mission calling for withdrawal of both Nicaraguan and Honduran forces from the frontier and creation of a buffer zone.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza Jr., Nicaraguan army chief, was present during the conference of the OAS envoys with his brother.

They showed the peace group rifles, grenades and helmets which they said had been captured from Honduran troops at Mocoron.

It was at Mocoron, an Indian village, that the conflict began when it was reported that Nicaraguan soldiers had invaded what Honduras claims is its province of Gracia A Dios.

After the talks with the envoys, the Somoza brothers and the Cabinet held a conference. Later, the president called a meeting of political leaders, including members of the opposition, to discuss "national unity" in view of the crisis.

Family Rejects Princess' Jazz Pianist-Suitor

STOCKHOLM, May 5 (AP)—A young London jazz pianist has proposed to Swedish Princess Margaretha but was rejected by her family, a spokesman for the Swedish palace reported tonight.

The princess' mother, Princess Sibylla, wrote to the suitor, Robin Douglas-Home, that such a marriage is "unthinkable," Count Carl-Reinhold von Essen said.

The count, master of the royal household, told newsmen the matter was finished more than a month ago.

He described it as "an innocent little affair between two young people such as so often occurs."

"A marriage between Margaretha, 22, and Douglas-Home, 25, is regarded by the royal family as unsuitable because of the circumstances of the suitor," von Essen added.

He was questioned after the London Sunday Express reported the princess had been called home from England on orders of King Gustaf, her grandfather, who disapproved of the romance.

She had been living in London with friends of her mother. Her father died in a plane crash 10 years ago.

Douglas-Home works by day in a London advertising agency and by night as pianist at a fashionable London hotel. He is a nephew of the Earl of Home, lord president of the Council in the British government and Conservative leader in the House of Lords.

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP)—One girl was killed and five other youths injured, three critically, last night when the car in which they were riding left Mac Arthur Boulevard at Cathedral Avenue, N.W., and flipped over several times.

Police said the accident happened during a race with another car which sped away when the ill-fated car overturned.

The girl killed was identified as Judy Leach, 16.

NEW BRIGHTON, Minn., May 5 (AP)—A big, shimmering balloon will go back up to 90,000 feet again tomorrow morning.

Drinkwater had been missing since the grain-filled freighter sank early Thursday after being rammed by a tug-pushed barge. The ship and 5,600 bushels of corn sank in about 50 feet of water near the bridge which carries U.S. 50 over the river.

Members of the tug Ghetto, out of Virginia, spotted the body about 5 a.m., approximately one mile northeast of where the Conway went down.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph Kiopp said tug members notified bridge tender Wallace Davenport, who in turn enlisted the aid of waterman Roy Hurley. Using Hurley's boat, the two men retrieved the body from the river.

Capt. Calvert Evans, skipper of the Conway, identified the body as that of Drinkwater and it was sent to a Cambridge funeral home. Dr. John Mace, Dorchester County medical examiner, said the cause of death was drowning.

Kiopp said relatives of Drinkwater in Elizabeth City, N.C. have been notified. He said they planned to have the body shipped to North Carolina for burial.

Sam Abrahams, a diver from Baltimore, searched the wreckage of the ship Thursday and Friday for the body. He said it would be impossible to float the small, wooden ship. The sunken hull is not blocking the channel of the river which separates Wicomico and Dorchester counties.

Contractor, 67 Guests Return From Sweden

CHICAGO, May 5 (AP)—A big-hearted contractor and his 67 guests ended their flying round trip to Sweden today with a prayer and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Ragnar Benson and his party filed out of their airliner at Midway Airport. Then they gathered near the plane in the peace and brilliance of a sunny Sunday morning in spring and lifted their voices in the national anthem.

One of the voyagers, the Rev. Theodore E. Palmer, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church in Chicago, offered a prayer of gratitude, thanking God for guiding the travelers over land and sea in safety and perfect health.

And everybody went home with pleasant, enduring memories of a three-week tour.

Benson, a wealthy man, footed the bill—estimated at about $50,000.

Like Nightmare Floodwaters Suck Family Of Four Through Culvert

ATLANTA, May 5 (AP)—Their Florida vacation is off, but the W. E. Tyndale family isn't complaining. They're thankful just to be alive.

For a few terrifying minutes, the Tyndales and their two young children fought death in a nightmare of darkness and swift, swirling waters.

All four were snatched under by flash flood waters and sucked through a 42-inch steel culvert beneath a railroad track. All escaped with cuts and bruises.

"I know now how it feels to drown," Tyndale said. "And believe me, your life really does flash in front of your eyes."

The Tyndales were bound for a Florida vacation when they ran into a cloudburst Friday night just south of Nashville, Ga., on U.S. 129. The sudden downpour forced them to stop the car with about 10 other stalled motorists.

"Suddenly the car moved sideways and we saw water coming in through the floorboards," Tyndale related. "I tried to open the door but the water was nearly to the windows and I couldn't get it open. The car was settling fast. We each grabbed one of the kids and dived headfirst out the windows."

Clinging to the car, Tyndale had to remove a leg brace he wears as a result of a polio attack five years ago.

"Bill always said if he fell in the water that would be the first thing he would do," Mrs. Tyndale said. "We held to the car until the front end began to sink and we decided to try to swim back to the highway." He took Nancy, 7, because she is the biggest. I held Billy, 5, and we struck out.

Unable to see in the darkness and heavy rain, the Tyndales did not know they were swimming toward the railroad culvert where tons of rainwater gurgled madly in a strong whirlpool.

The strong suction snatched them.

"That was the most brutal force I've ever experienced," said Tyndale, a 31-year-old Atlanta construction engineer. "We were swept into the culvert, tumbling end over end under water, banging against the side, and then we were spewed out the other side. We didn't know if we were alive or dead, or where we were."

"At the time," his 27-year-old wife said today, "it — the culvert — seemed the most horrible thing in the world. But we're sure now it saved our lives. We couldn't have survived in the deep water. The children were fighting us. But we were sucked through the culvert to shallow water."

Dick Walter, a member of the Valdosta Tigers baseball team, who was on his honeymoon, heard Mrs. Tyndale's shouts for help. He shucked off his clothes and swam to the aid of Tyndale and Nancy.

Bogota Police Use Tear Gas On Crowds

BOGOTA, Colombia, May 5 (AP)—Police broke up demonstrations with tear gas and streams of dyed water today, interrupting mass in a church where a priest renewed his attacks on the government.

The action shattered the brief calm in Bogota that followed Saturday's student anti-government outbreaks.

Opposition to plans to have President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla re-elected by a constituent assembly has caused pronounced unrest.

Police threw tear gas shells at a crowd around the church where the Rev. Theodoro Velazquez renewed attacks on the government that marked his holy week sermons.

The congregation applauded his belligerent tone and sang the national anthem. Father Velazquez told his congregation no one could keep him from speaking freely.

Soggy Texas Welcomes Sun

DALLAS, May 5 (AP)—A bright sun covered Texas today for the first time in 18 days and flood-weary Texans could look at the sky without seeing a rain cloud.

At Wichita Falls, where Holliday Creek and Wichita Lake flooded streets and forced dozens of families from their homes, police Sgt. A. M. Davenport said, "The peak has passed. It's just clear and sun-shiny as could be."

Davenport said, "The water is going down. Not all the folks are back in their homes yet. But they will be tomorrow." He said the creek and the lake were falling.

The threat to a million-dollar bridge across the Brazos River in central Texas appeared to have passed today. Highway engineers were said to have expected the bridge to be washed away by two rises in the river.

Patrolman J. W. Barton at Cleburne, near the bridge, said the river rose 18 inches in 12 hours "but the water is still six feet under the bridge."

The state estimated the floods caused five million dollars damage to government facilities and President Eisenhower allocated one million dollars for the repair of public property.

Atom War Games Get Under Way

ABOARD USS FORRESTAL in the Mediterranean, May 5 (AP)—Operation Green Pivot, theoretical version of the world's first big atomic war, begins at midnight Sunday with planes, troops and warships of five nations locked in an imaginary struggle for northern Italy.

The operation will take a four-day slice out of the "war" which began the last week of March with an atomic strike by "Red" enemy forces against friendly "Blue" powers.

The purpose of the exercise, in which the 6th Fleet joined after its lightning-like return from a flag-showing mission to the eastern Mediterranean, is to train both sides in actual conditions of atomic war.

Merit Scholars Choose Leading Institutions

'Ivy League' Schools Are Among Leaders

Many of America's outstanding 1957 high school graduates plan to attend either old long-established liberal arts colleges in the East or technological institutions.

An analysis of the colleges selected by the 830 national merit scholarship winners of 1957 indicates a strong preference for the so-called Ivy League schools, other Eastern institutions, and schools offering technical training.

Ten or more of the national scholars have signified their intentions of attending each of 17 different institutions. Harvard is the leader with 64, followed closely by one of the nation's leading technological schools, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with 59 scholarship winners.

Other Eastern institutions which will attract ten or more of the 1957 national merit scholars come September include Yale, 26; Princeton, 26; Cornell, 20; Swarthmore, 13, and Amherst, 10, and two outstanding Massachusetts colleges for women, Radcliffe, with 20, and Wellesley, with 16.

Midwestern schools chosen by ten or more of the merit scholars include the University of Michigan, 15; Northwestern, 12, and Oberlin, 11. From the Far West are Stanford, 23; California Institute of Technology, 23, and Reed College, a small institution in Portland, Oregon, 11. The South is represented by Rice Institute, 16, and Duke, 10.

All told, some 223 institutions of higher learning were selected by the merit scholars. In general they disregarded their own state universities, and most of them also shunned the traditional "football" schools.

The tendency to choose out-of-state schools is illustrated by the scholarship winners from Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Of the ten Marylanders only one plans to enroll in a state institution—the University of Maryland—come fall. Out of the 57 Pennsylvanians winning merit scholarships only 23 will remain in the state to take their college education. Michael D. Reynolds, 122 East Union Street, Somerset, now a senior at Mercersburg Academy, for instance, will enroll at Princeton.

Only two of the 13 West Virginia scholarship winners plan to study in their home state. One of them is S. Elizabeth Reed of Burlington, a Keyser High School senior, who will study at Davis and Elkins College.

Attendance Is Good
Some years — this is the 26th for these classes — as many as 45 teachers have attended regularly.

The elementary teachers, numbering 18 this year, meet on a different Saturday with Miss Elizabeth Flake, Miss Winifred Greene, and Miss Mildred E. Wilson, elementary supervisors. They discuss such subjects as "Evaluating and Reporting Pupil Progress"; "Promotion Policies"; "Growth of Children Through Teacher-Pupil Planning"; "Christmas or Special Activities"; "Creative Writing" and others.

The supervisors spend much of their own time preparing material which is sent to the teachers prior to each session for advance study. A great deal of reference reading is also necessary.

But these classes represent just one of the extra activities fostered by ACEI and which are designed to make good teachers better teachers.

Fivefold Purpose

The Constitution of ACEI in Article II, sets forth the full purposes of the organization: 1. To work for the well-being of children. 2. To promote desirable conditions, programs and practices in the schools—nursery through the elementary. 3. To raise the standard of preparation and to encourage the continued professional growth of teachers and leaders in this field. 4. To bring into active cooperation all groups concerned with children in the school, the home and the community. 5. To inform the public of the needs of children and how the school program must be adjusted to fit those needs.

Officers of the Allegany County Branch ACEI are Raymond Skidmore, president; Samuel Lisanti, first vice president; Orpha Clark, second vice president; Helen Kreiling, corresponding secretary; Mary Straw, treasurer; and Winifred Greene, advisor.

Henry Clay maintained a strong interest in internal improvements such as the Cumberland Road and the C&O Canal during his long years of service in Washington. He denounced President Monroe in 1824 when the latter vetoed a bill calling for establishment of toll houses along the Cumberland Road.

Clay had still another reason for interest in Western Maryland. His wife was a Hart from Washington County.

Lumber Yard Swept By Spectacular Fire

WASHINGTON, May 5 (AP) — A spectacular 7-alarm fire raged through the Johnson & Wimsatt lumber yard at 901 Maine Ave., SW, today, causing damage estimated at $500,000.

About 75 per cent of the city's fire-fighting equipment was called to the waterfront scene as flames leaped 100-feet into the air and dense clouds of smoke billowed upward 1,000 feet at the noon time fire's height.

The fire roared quickly out of control shortly after it was discovered at 11:56 a. m. but more than 160 firemen directed by Fire Chief Millard H. Sutton brought the blaze under control at 1:27 p. m.

items of wallboard, panels and the like.

Mr. Morgan said yesterday that at times the "going has been tough and we have had hard-sledging." Shortage of working capital has been a handicap. However, lucrative offers of financial assistance from large corporations wanting to break into the plastics field without the headaches of development already made here, have been spurned, because Morgan and his associates have been determined to operate with local capital. They believe that what is developed in Cumberland with Cumberland capital and know-how should remain here. However they are now faced with the idea that they might grow faster by accepting one of the several offers at hand.

In any event, the plant must soon be moved someplace "where there is some acreage for the size plant we must have, and we no longer have any fear about the ability to profitably market anything and everything we can make," said Morgan.

The field of premium merchandise alone has created such a demand for all types of colorful, useful products that no industry in the country can fill all the orders, he explained. The demand for new and modern methods of packaging, for modern lighting equipment and fixtures, and the field of building materials alone, are enough potential business "to make anyone sit up and take notice," Mr. Morgan said. He said numerous firms have contracted Artmor with requests for bids on scores of items.

The fruit bowl for which production is now being planned is to be used by one of the largest fruit distribution companies in the country as a special premium for gifts and holiday merchandising. It will be advertised shortly in leading magazines.

While this new business is on hand and more is in sight, the plant is kept busy with its original "bread-winners."

These are plastic advertising items, nameplates, door numerals, signs, packaging materials, plastic briefcases, blanket bags, and items for the armed forces, all of which are still produced on regular schedule.

Present personnel at the plant will begin the operation of the new equipment and new production method to be employed. These people will then train others as they are needed, Morgan said.

Besides Mr. Morgan, who is president, founder and active manager of the industry, the other officers include S. Russ Minter, local architect, vice president; J. Henry Holzshu, local insurance man, secretary-treasurer; Byron Kight, local funeral director, and Harry I. Stegmaier, local attorney, members of the board of directors.

Charles E. Kolb is plant production manager; Marion Nesselrodt is shop foreman; and Ray Logue is chief patternmaker.

However, lucrative offers of financial assistance from large corporations wanting to break into the plastics field without the headaches of development already made here, have been spurned, because Morgan and his associates have been determined to operate with local capital. They believe that what is developed in Cumberland with Cumberland capital and know-how should remain here. However they are now faced with the idea that they might grow faster by accepting one of the several offers at hand.

In any event, the plant must soon be moved someplace "where there is some acreage for the size plant we must have, and we no longer have any fear about the ability to profitably market anything and everything we can make," said Morgan.

The field of premium merchandise alone has created such a demand for all types of colorful, useful products that no industry in the country can fill all the orders, he explained. The demand for new and modern methods of packaging, for modern lighting equipment and fixtures, and the field of building materials alone are enough potential business "to make anyone sit up and take notice," Mr. Morgan said. He said numerous firms have contracted Artmor with requests for bids on scores of items.

The fruit bowl for which production is now being planned is to be used by one of the largest fruit distribution companies in the country as a special premium for gifts and holiday merchandising. It will be advertised shortly in leading magazines.

While this new business is on hand and more is in sight, the plant is kept busy with its original "bread-winners."

These are plastic advertising items, nameplates, door numerals, signs, packaging materials, plastic briefcases, blanket bags, and items for the armed forces, all of which are still produced on regular schedule.

Present personnel at the plant will begin the operation of the new equipment and new production method to be employed. These people will then train others as they are needed, Morgan said.

Besides Mr. Morgan, who is president, founder and active manager of the industry, the other officers include S. Russ Minter, local architect, vice president; J. Henry Holzshu, local insurance man, secretary-treasurer; Byron Kight, local funeral director, and Harry I. Stegmaier, local attorney, members of the board of directors.

Charles E. Kolb is plant production manager; Marion Nesselrodt is shop foreman; and Ray Logue is chief patternmaker.

Save your nickels

—to save your dollars!

Everyone's talking about living costs going up and up. Here's something you can do about them.

One of the main causes of rising prices is overspending. If each of us will save only an extra nickel out of every dollar we earn, we will put a strong brake on inflation.

For this will produce billions of dollars in savings—money which is urgently needed to finance more factories, homes and schools.

And, of course, you get a personal bonus from your extra savings—the feeling of independence and security that a growing nest egg brings ... the feeling that your house is in order.

As a second step to fight inflation, all of us should support every reasonable move to reduce government spending—federal, state and local.

Sure, all this means a sacrifice. But isn't it worth it, if this means continuing our prosperity—and keeping it sound?

106 million policyholders have made life insurance America's most widely used form of thrift. In the interest of these policyholders—in the interest of all of us—the life insurance companies feel they have a duty to help preserve the purchasing power of the dollar.

Sorting Out Our Fighting Men

Psychology long has played an important role in warfare, both in troop training and in actual combat. But until recently no attempt has been made by the United States to use psychologists or others proficient in the art of analyzing character traits in an attempt to discover combat potentials of fighting men prior to combat. Such a study has been completed at Fort Ord, Calif., and the researchers involved have high hopes they have come up with a series of tests which will separate the "fighters" from the "non-fighters." If such a separation is possible before troops actually face the enemy, better distribution of the "non-fighters" among combat units and different training concepts to change this group into more aggressive combatants are possibilities which could increase the efficiency of fighting units.

It should be explained that "non-fighters" in this connection does not imply cowardice, but is used to describe those of a more backward nature who tend to shy away from bodily contact with the enemy, "freeze" when they enter into combat, and in general prefer to be followers instead of leaders.

Tests, conducted by the Human Research Unit No. 2 of the Continental Army Command, were given primarily to 310 veterans of close combat activity in Korea, although reports were compiled on 1,000 individuals. From these studies and from reports of actual combat conduct of the veterans, the researchers were able to distinguish the two types of personalities involved.

Although such a differentiation among combat troops could, under certain circumstances, lead to undesirable reactions, the benefits to military commanders of such a program would seem to transcend all other considerations.

Avoid Or Evade

I have a letter from C. E. Spencer, President of The Casement Hardware Co. and the Win-Dor Corporation of Puerto Rico, who instructs me learnedly on the difference between avoid and evade. As every taxpayer would like to know the difference between avoid and evade, I can only hope that Spencer's definitions will be accepted by the Income Tax Collectors and by the judge. Spencer writes:

"Your worst 'goof' is where you twice refer to tax evaders. Certainly with your command of language you should know the difference between 'avoid' and 'evade.' Ever since the Boston Tea Party it has been considered the duty of patriotic Americans to avoid taxes which is legal, but evasion is illegal and a criminal act. (I notice further the extent of your confusion where you say 'Then the tax evader finds a legal and comfortable way to evade some taxes, throwing the burden on other citizens'). There is no legal way to evade taxes."

The answer to that is: "Tell it to the judge!"

We who have to pay our full share of taxes cannot work a gimmick that will help us to turn evade into avoid. Those whose tax is collected by the withholding method cannot avoid taxes or evade taxes. They just have to pay and pay and hope that they overpay and do not underpay.

The economic interpretation of the Boston Tea Party, which in this letter is given a moralistic overtone, does give one the hope that some day Americans may dunk the tax collectors in their neighborhood ponds. As it stands now, if you don't pay, you are charged six per cent, and eventually a lien is put on your household furnishings and in due course, you might go to jail for evading or avoiding a tax payment.

I doubt whether the Courts would make a fine distinction between evading the tax or avoiding it, although many tax havens are now being organized to permit Americans to evade the income tax by avoiding it which is why some Americans keep their money in Switzerland or Venezuela or Uruguay (Montevideo). Puerto Rico is a tax haven for American businesses and if not too many have taken advantage of it, it is only because they do not recognize its possibilities. There are also many possibilities for the tax-avoider in Canada, but this works out better for the corporation than for the individual.

The rule that is to be applied is the law of diminishing returns which is immutable. When taxes become oppressive, the human mind conceives means for avoiding or evading the tax. If the tax becomes too oppressive and the avoidances or evasions become too numerous, the income from the tax grows increasingly less. This is beginning to make itself manifest in Michigan, General Motors establishing plants in other states where the tax rates are not so ferocious. Some of the automobile plants are actually being established outside the United States where not only are taxes more rational but labor costs less. Spencer writes me:

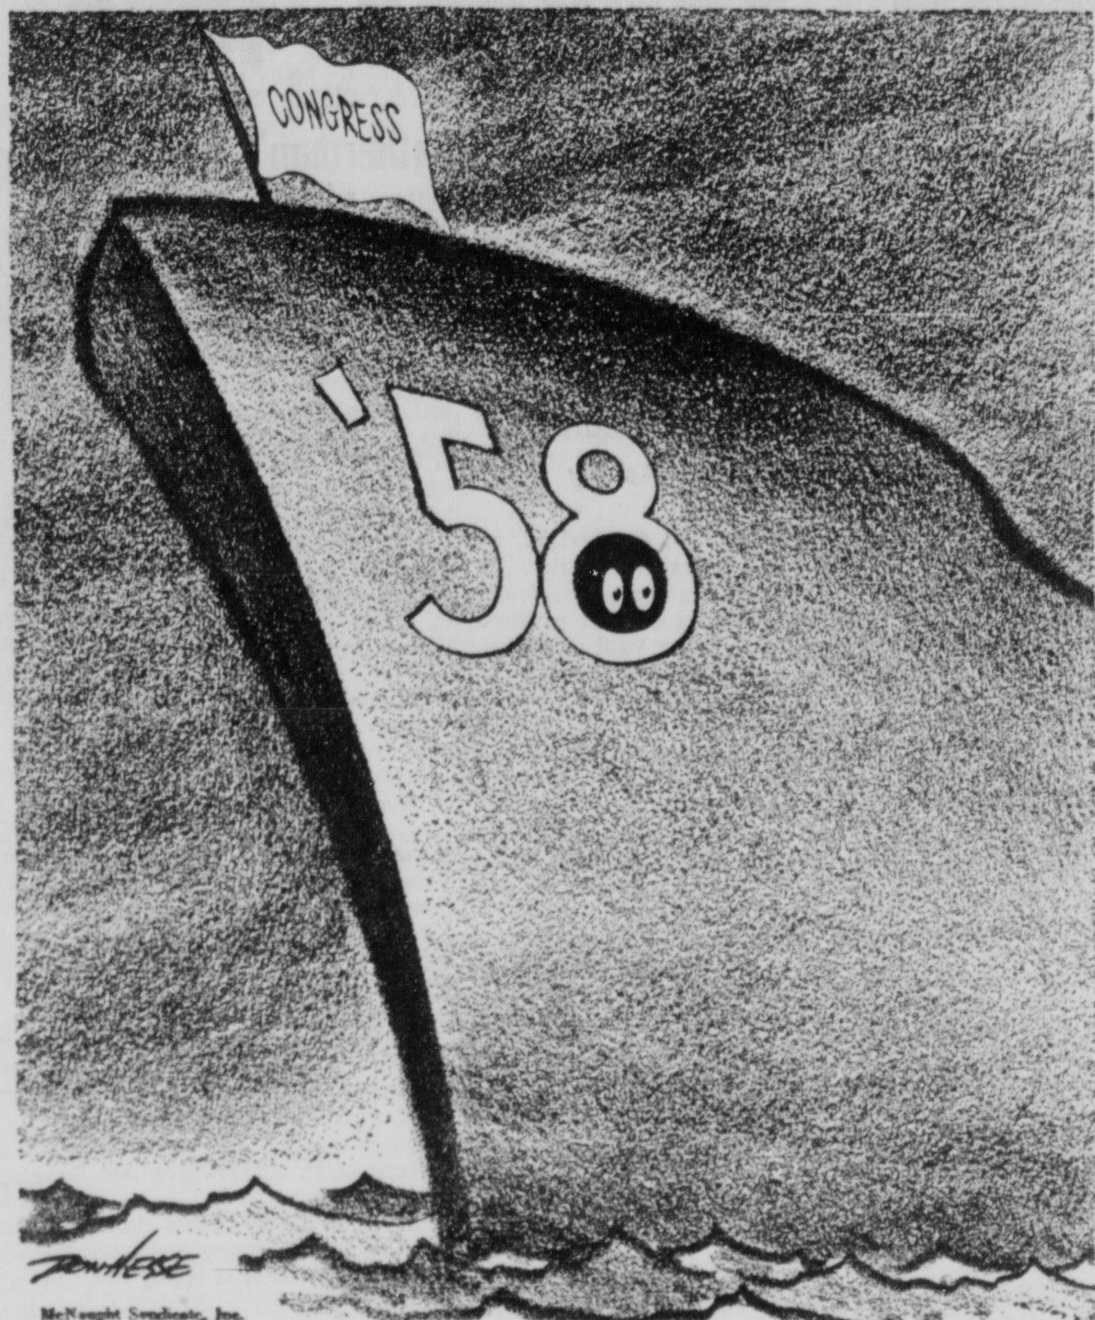

"It may be gilding the lily to mention that you are griping about wages and tax exempt advantages in Puerto Rico. It may be a very tonic thing to consider the oppressive and destructive burden of stateside taxes. If there (they) were brought down to some reasonable basis there would be little point for American money and enterprise going anywhere..."

This is quite true. Enterprise flows to where it is advantageous to be. The huge American industrial base was established largely by run-away capital and run-away workers from European countries. In this exodus of men, money and machines, first Great Britain and then Germany played tremendous roles, and what they lost was America's gain.

Since the United States has gone in for the universal welfare state, our cost of operations has become enormous, not only for the Federal Government which is now required to adopt the elephantine Eisenhower Budget, but for state and municipal governments as well. Meanwhile, the Eisenhower Administration is pouring billions into Europe, Africa and Asia, some of which undoubtedly comes back here as risk capital in amounts that are dangerously large.

Money moves to the place where profits are good and safety is assured. If it moves from the United States to Puerto Rico or Canada or anywhere, it means that there one can make a profit and the money is safe.

McGurn's Ouster A Threat To Press Freedom

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Nearly two weeks have passed since Barrett McGurn of the New York Herald Tribune was ejected from Egypt by order of Dictator Nasser. Mr. McGurn wrote the truth about Egypt in his dispatches, but Nasser didn't like it.

Despite, however, this flagrant violation of the principle of the freedom of the press, not a single protest about it has been made by any of the national organizations of the newspaper profession here in America. Nor has the United States Government gone on record in a public protest to the Cairo Government.

This is surprising in view of the fact that the national news associations and trade bodies were holding annual meetings in New York in the week just after the expulsion of Mr. McGurn occurred. There has been plenty of time since for the different newspaper associations or their officers to express themselves.

American readers, of course, will not be able to believe hereafter what is transmitted from Cairo and published, since it is widely known that foreign newsmen in Egypt are being intimidated by threats of expulsion if they do not write to please Nasser. The Egyptian Government has pointed with self-righteousness to the fact that it has opened the doors to a substitute correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune in Cairo. But the warning remains — that correspondents hereafter must write what the Egyptian Government wants them to write or be expelled.

Not long ago there was a barrage of publicity from a variety of newspaper organizations on the subject of the refusal of the United States Government to grant passports to newsmen who were willing to accept Red China's invitation to visit that country. Mr. Dulles disagreed and was accused of trying to stifle freedom of the press. Hearings were held by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a Communist editor was invited to testify. Various Democrats in Congress tried to make political capital out of it.

Yet today, when a newspaperman is expelled by the Egyptian dictator, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee doesn't take up the matter, nor have there been any speeches made in Congress about it up to this time.

The issue, however, in the matter of news reporting abroad has not been clearly defined insofar as governmental rights and diplomatic protection are concerned. If freedom of the press throughout the world is to be upheld, it will not be accomplished by entering, for example, into a compromise with the Red China Government and, in a sense, letting American newspapermen become instruments of the Communist regime's foreign policy. For while the Red China Government did invite a few reporters, it restricted the length of their visit, and, as experience has shown, it does not allow newsmen any freedom of travel inside China, even in the cities which are not in military areas.

But there's only one basis on

Ear Noises In Middle Age Have Many Causes

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many of the middleaged develop ear noises (tinnitus). These sounds are disregarded so long as they are not loud enough to be bothersome. But they may become so annoying sleep is disturbed and the victims are unable to concentrate during the day.

There are more than a dozen causes of this condition but insanity is not one of them. The mentally disturbed individual is certain he hears voices, which is different from the characteristic ringing, jingling, and whistling of tinnitus.

Two kinds of sounds are heard by both the individual and the physician, if he places his stethoscope on the patient's head. Clicking in the ears on swallowing is one; it usually is caused by the contraction of the muscles about the palate and the eustachian tubes. The second sound comes from pulsations of the blood vessels.

The other type of head noises are audible only to the person himself. They stem from within the organ of hearing, the ear nerve, or the hearing centers of the brain. We do not know what is happening in these structures because no one has ever opened the head to investigate. In all probability there is mild degeneration not unlike that occurring elsewhere in the body as a result of age, wear and tear.

The use of certain drugs always must be considered should tinnitus appear. Quinine, aspirin, alcohol, and dihydrostreptomycin may make the ears ring. The caffeine in coffee and tea, in excessive amounts will do the same and so will smoking. Workers in a boiler factory environment may develop ear noises, particularly when the sound level is high and persistent enough to traumatize the hearing apparatus.

The manifestation may be a precursor of deafness and now and then it is blamed if the individual cannot hear. Tinnitus also occurs in Meniere's syndrome, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, anemia, allergy, and blocked eustachian tubes. Many pregnant women complain of ringing in the ears and so do highstrung nervous women who are in the menopause.

Fatigue, stress, and emotional upsets make the condition worse. Most victims feel better when taking a tranquilizing drug or a product such as nicotinic acid to improve the circulation. Others are helped by hormones, histamine, or the iodides.

Nickerson Memo On Guided Missile Controversy Has Been Retrieved

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Charley Wilson and I had a friendly argument some time ago about the famed Nickerson memorandum on guided missiles, which he won.

The Pentagon had confiscated this secret memo when we showed it to a public relations official for guidance on what could be published without harming the national security, and I suggested to Secretary Wilson that, when a newspaperman was trying to cooperate with the Defense Department was contrary to three decades of established precedent. But he overruled me.

However, after some delay and considerable effort, we have now secured another copy of the secret memo and will publish certain portions of it. Some parts will be withheld from publication for security reasons.

It will be obvious to the public as they read this document that its main burden pertains to a battle between big business — General Motors and Chrysler — over who shall build the guided missile. Also it's a battle between lobbyists. This is something the public has a right to know about.

Although Col. John Nickerson, a top officer at the Army's ballistic missile base at Huntsville, Ala., has been ordered court-martialed for writing this secret memo, his name is not on it. I have never met Col. Nickerson and had no way of knowing, when Jack Anderson of my staff took the memo to the Defense Department, that Nickerson was involved.

Radford—"Enemy Of Army"

His memo involves Wilson's decision to concentrate guided-missile development in the Air Force, shutting down all work done by the Army. It also involves the most important potential weapon of modern warfare, the intercontinental ballistic missile, capable of reaching Moscow in 30 minutes carrying a hydrogen bomb.

While the secret memo is long, it is highly important. The first installment, minus certain deletions, follows:

"Section I. INTRODUCTION

"On 26 November 1956, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson published a 'Memorandum for: Members of the Armed Forces Policy Council. Subject: Clarification of roles and missions to improve the effectiveness of operation of the Department of Defense.'

"With respect to the IRBM (intermediate range ballistic missile) the background is as follows: The President's Scientific Advisory Group, ODM, early in 1955 recommended that a 1,500-mile ballistic missile be developed. The Army, Navy and Air Force expressed operational requirements for the missile and authority to develop it. Mr. Wilson referred the operational requirements to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for resolution.

"By the fall of 1955 the JCS were still unable to agree. The Air Force and Navy agreed to each other's requirement but not to the Army's. Admiral Radford, Chairman of the JCS, forwarded the views of the chiefs to Mr. Wilson with his recommendations which coincided with those of the Air Force and Navy.

"Mr. Wilson's basic operating procedure apparently is to listen to the man responsible and follow his advice. For military decision he listens primarily to Admiral Radford. It appears that Admiral Radford is a rather bitter enemy of the U. S. Army and has made a long series of recommendations to Mr. Wilson which are hostile to legitimate Army interests.

The Army offered the services of this development team under the famous Dr. von Braun to both the Navy and the Air Force and stated that a single missile would be developed which could satisfy both the land and sea-based requirements.

developed by the Air Force. IRBM No. 2 (later named Jupiter) was to be developed by the Army to meet both land and sea-based requirements.

"This clearly meant that the Army operational requirement for such a missile was officially recognized. The Army established the Army ballistic missile agency at Redstone Arsenal near Huntsville, Alabama, to execute the task.

"The assistant to the Secretary of Defense for guided missiles, Dr. Eger Murphree, determined a few months ago that the Jupiter design was superior to Thor, and was readying a recommendation to discontinue the Thor missile.

"This action was discontinued when the Secretary of the Air Force requested a general settlement of Army-Air Force differences. The request of the Secretary of the Air Force resulted in bringing the roles and mission question before the JCS for the second time. A disagreement again occurred along the same lines as a year earlier.

Army Overruled

"Admiral Radford again presented his views virtually unchanged from the previous year to Mr. Wilson. This time, however, Mr. Wilson decided to back Radford. This resulted in the 26 November memorandum stating that the land-based intermediate range ballistic missile system will be the sole responsibility of the U. S. Air Force.

"The recommendations of the assistant to the Secretary of Defense, Dr. Murphree; the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Research and Development, Dr. Furnas; the Secretary of the Army, Mr. Brucker; and the Chief of Staff of the Army, General Taylor, were ignored.

"Section II. POLICY CHANGES DISSIPATE EFFORT

"The approval of the Army's operational requirement in November 1955 and its withdrawal in December 1956 is an unmistakable reversal of policy. The Jupiter program was set up on the highest national priority along with Thor and the two ICBM programs. $35,000,000 of Army funds were obligated in fiscal year and $150,000,000 (of fiscal year) 1957 Army funds are being obligated at this time.

"It takes six or seven years and about $500,000,000 to develop a large guided missile. It is obvious that major policy reversals will delay the availability date of the weapon and waste large amounts of money. The government must know what it wants before it starts such a program and must adhere steadfastly to the objective throughout the long period required to do the work."

Also Los Angeles still has a few "All You Can Eat" restaurants. One brave fellow there offers all the smorgasbord you can eat for $2. Another offers all the roast beef, baked ham or roast turkey you can eat for $1.85. This offer includes vegetables, dessert and coffee.

RETIREMENT

Men in their middle fifties are frequently advised against retirement on the grounds that it will decrease longevity. That applies only to men so wrapped up in their business that they have no other interests. Men with hobbies and a variety of interests usually live long. Take Izaak Walton, who was a London businessman when he retired at the age of 50. He lived to be 90. He enjoyed 40 years of leisure. His hobby, as you know, was fishing. He also liked to write. The first edition of his classic "The Compleat Angler" was published when he was 60. He wrote a fifth edition when 83.

DOGS

What breed of sporting dogs is the best retriever? That's what a Baltimorean asks. I don't feel qualified to answer this query. However, it is difficult to top the springer spaniel as a retriever. Some springers have such "gentle jaws" for retrieving they can carry an egg without breaking it.

Sorting Out Our Fighting Men

Psychology long has played an important role in warfare, both in troop training and in actual combat. But until recently no attempt has been made by the United States to use psychologists or others proficient in the art of analyzing character traits in an attempt to discover combat potentials of fighting men prior to combat. Such a study has been completed at Fort Ord, Calif., and the researchers involved have high hopes they have come up with a series of tests which will separate the "fighters" from the "non-fighters." If such a separation is possible before troops actually face the enemy, better distribution of the "non-fighters" among combat units and different training concepts to change this group into more aggressive combatants are possibilities which could increase the efficiency of fighting units.

It should be explained that "non-fighters" in this connection does not imply cowardice, but is used to describe those of a more backward nature who tend to shy away from bodily contact with the enemy, "freeze" when they enter into combat, and in general prefer to be followers instead of leaders.

Tests, conducted by the Human Research Unit No. 2 of the Continental Army Command, were given primarily to 310 veterans of close combat activity in Korea, although reports were compiled on 1,000 individuals. From these studies and from reports of actual combat conduct of the veterans, the researchers were able to distinguish the two types of personalities involved.

Although such a differentiation among combat troops could, under certain circumstances, lead to undesirable reactions, the benefits to military commanders of such a program would seem to transcend all other considerations.

Avoid Or Evade

I have a letter from C. E. Spencer, President of The Casement Hardware Co. and the Win-Dor Corporation of Puerto Rico, who instructs me learnedly on the difference between avoid and evade. As every taxpayer would like to know the difference between avoid and evade, I can only hope that Spencer's definitions will be accepted by the Income Tax Collectors and by the judge. Spencer writes:

"Your worst 'goof' is where you twice refer to tax evaders. Certainly with your command of language you should know the difference between 'avoid' and 'evade.' Ever since the Boston Tea Party it has been considered the duty of patriotic Americans to avoid taxes which is legal, but evasion is illegal and a criminal act. I notice further the extent of your confusion where you say 'Then the tax evader finds a legal and comfortable way to evade some taxes, throwing the burden on other citizens.' There is no legal way to evade taxes."

The answer to that is: "Tell it to the judge!" We who have to pay our full share of taxes cannot work a gimmick that will help us to turn evade into avoid. Those whose tax is collected by the withholding method cannot avoid taxes or evade taxes. They just have to pay and pay and hope that they overpay and do not underpay.

The economic interpretation of the Boston Tea Party, which in this letter is given a moralistic overtone, does give one the hope that some day Americans may dunk the tax collectors in their neighborhood ponds. As it stands now, if you don't pay, you are charged six per cent, and eventually a lien is put on your household furnishings and in due course, you might go to jail for evading or avoiding a tax payment.

I doubt whether the Courts would make a fine distinction between evading the tax or avoiding it, although many tax havens are now being organized to permit Americans to evade the income tax by avoiding it which is why some Americans keep their money in Switzerland or Venezuela or Uruguay (Montevideo). Puerto Rico is a tax haven for American businesses and if not too many have taken advantage of it, it is only because they do not recognize its possibilities. There are also many possibilities for the tax-avoider in Canada, but this works out better for the corporation than for the individual.

The rule that is to be applied is the law of diminishing returns which is immutable. When taxes become oppressive, the human mind conceives means for avoiding or evading the tax. If the tax becomes too oppressive and the avoidances or evasions become too numerous, the income from the tax grows increasingly less. This is beginning to make itself manifest in Michigan, General Motors establishing plants in other states where the tax rates are not so ferocious. Some of the automobile plants are actually being established outside the United States where not only are taxes more rational but labor costs less. Spencer writes me:

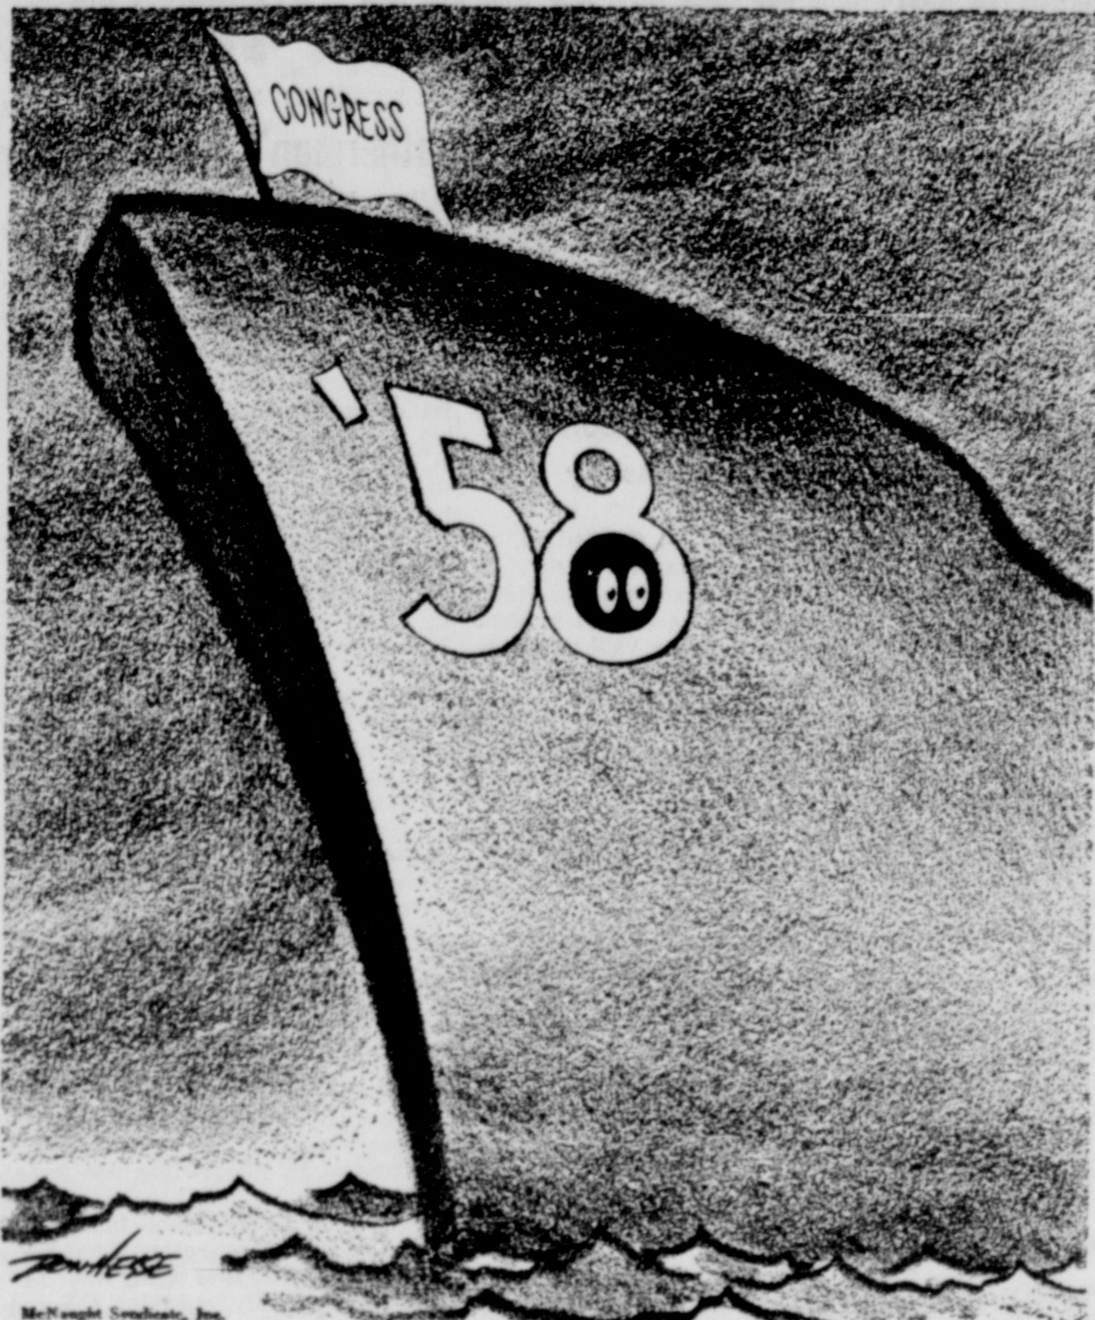

"It may be gilding the lily to mention that you are griping about wages and tax exempt advantages in Puerto Rico. It may be a very tonic thing to consider the oppressive and destructive burden of stateside taxes. If there (they) were brought down to some reasonable basis there would be little point for American money and enterprise going anywhere..."

This is quite true. Enterprise flows to where it is advantageous to be. The huge American industrial base was established largely by run-away capital and run-away workers from European countries. In this exodus of men, money and machines, first Great Britain and then Germany played tremendous roles, and what they lost was America's gain.

Since the United States has gone in for the universal welfare state, our cost of operations has become enormous, not only for the Federal Government which is now required to adopt the elephantine Eisenhower Budget, but for state and municipal governments as well. Meanwhile, the Eisenhower Administration is pouring billions into Europe, Africa and Asia, some of which undoubtedly comes back here as risk capital in amounts that are dangerously large.

Money moves to the place where profits are good and safety is assured. If it moves from the United States to Puerto Rico or Canada or anywhere, it means that there one can make a profit and the money is safe.

McGurn's Ouster A Threat To Press Freedom

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Nearly two weeks have passed since Barrett McGurn of the New York Herald Tribune was ejected from Egypt by order of Dictator Nasser. Mr. McGurn wrote the truth about Egypt in his dispatches, but Nasser didn't like it.

Despite, however, this flagrant violation of the principle of the freedom of the press, not a single protest about it has been made by any of the national organizations of the newspaper profession here in America. Nor has the United States Government gone on record in a public protest to the Cairo Government.

This is surprising in view of the fact that the national news associations and trade bodies were holding annual meetings in New York in the week just after the expulsion of Mr. McGurn occurred. There has been plenty of time since for the different newspaper associations or their officers to express themselves.

American readers, of course, will not be able to believe hereafter what is transmitted from Cairo and published, since it is widely known that foreign newsmen in Egypt are being intimidated by threats of expulsion if they do not write to please Nasser. The Egyptian Government has pointed with self-righteousness to the fact that it has opened the doors to a substitute correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune in Cairo. But the warning remains — that correspondents hereafter must write what the Egyptian Government wants them to write or be expelled.

Not long ago there was a barrage of publicity from a variety of newspaper organizations on the subject of the refusal of the United States Government to grant passports to newsmen who were willing to accept Red China's invitation to visit that country. Mr. Dulles disagreed and was accused of trying to stifle freedom of the press. Hearings were held by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a Communist editor was invited to testify. Various Democrats in Congress tried to make political capital out of it.

Yet today, when a newspaperman is expelled by the Egyptian dictator, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee doesn't take up the matter, nor have there been any speeches made in Congress about it up to this time.

The issue, however, in the matter of news reporting abroad has not been clearly defined insofar as governmental rights and diplomatic protection are concerned. If freedom of the press throughout the world is to be upheld, it will not be accomplished by entering, for example, into a compromise with the Red China Government and, in a sense, letting American newspapermen become instruments of the Communist regime's foreign policy. For while the Red China Government did invite a few reporters, it restricted the length of their visit, and, as experience has shown, it does not allow newsmen any freedom of travel inside China, even in the cities which are not in military areas.

But there's only one basis on

That applies only to men so wrapped up in their business that they have no other interests. Men with hobbies and a variety of interests usually live long. Take Isaac Walton, who was a London businessman when he retired at the age of 50. He lived to be 90. He enjoyed 40 years of leisure. His hobby, as you know, was fishing. He also liked to write. The first edition of his classic "The Compleat Angler" was published when he was 60. He wrote a fifth edition when 83.

DOGS

What breed of sporting dogs is the best retriever? That's what a Baltimorean asks. I don't feel qualified to answer this query. However, it is difficult to top the Springer spaniel as a retriever. Some springers have such "gentle jaws" for retrieving they can carry an egg without breaking it.

Fort Hill-Allegany, Potomac-Frostburg To Clash Today

Campers Lose Four Straight To Sentinels

Won Last In 1954; Bobcats Drop Ten In Row In Series

Allegany High School and Frostburg State Teachers College will be striving to shake losing streaks in series with traditional rivals when they tackle Fort Hill and Potomac State College in games scheduled for today at Campobello and Midland.

The Campers and Sentinels, tied at 1-0 in the city championship race, will tangle at 4 p.m. at Allegany Field.

Won Last In 1954

Allegany has lost four in a row to Fort Hill and has dropped five out of their last six games with teams from the Greenway Avenue school. Last season Jesse Markley beat Arthur Washington twice, 10-0 and 9-8. In 1955 Wayne Murray scored for Fort Hill over Page and Don Paye, 1-0 and 11-4. The last time the Campers beat Fort Hill was in the final game of the 1954 series when Bobby Dawson decided Murray, 5-3. The same pitchers hooked up in the first game and Murray was the victor, 6-5.

In city games staged thus far, Allegany edged LaSalle in 10 innings, 10-9, and Fort Hill defeated the Explorers, 4-1.

Fort Hill is leading the County League race with a 5-0 record while Allegany is in the runner-up spot. A victory for AHS would tie up the race.

Lost Ten Straight
Frostburg State will be trying to crack a 10-game losing streak at the hands of the Catamounts when the teams collide in the opener of their annual series to day at 2:30 o'clock at Midland.

The Bobcats last defeated Potomac in the first game of the 1951 series when John Frank was the victor, 10-4. The Catamounts have reeled off 10 wins in a row since then, starting with the 1951 finale, 22-9. The scores were 11-6 and 4-2 in 1952, 19-2 and 10-4 in 1953, 9-4 and 2-0 in 1954, 7-2 in the only game played in 1955 and 6-0 and 13-4 last year.

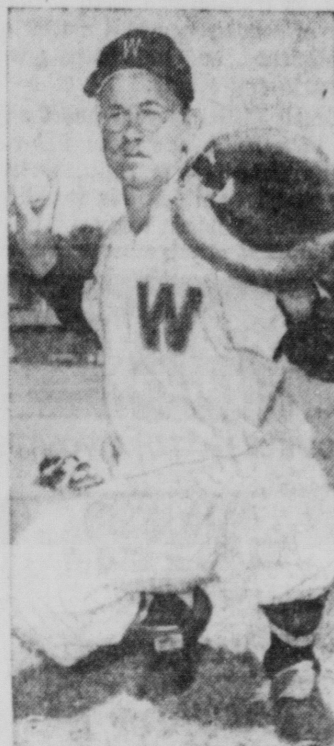

Valley and Bruce will play off a postponed game today at West-croft. These teams were rained out on April 26.

Jackets Seek No. 8
Moorefield High's unbeaten Yellowjackets will be shooting for their eighth consecutive win of the current campaign and their 30th in a row in the Potomac Valley Conference since 1954 when they host Circleville today. Coach Johnny Paugh's aggregation won the series opener by the score of 5-2.

Elk Garden High, also unbeaten, will be gunning for win No. 7 when it tackles Romney High today at Elk Garden.

Fresh Beat Bobcats
A four-run explosion in the 9th inning enabled the West Virginia University Freshmen to defeat Frostburg State Teachers College Saturday at Midland by the score of 15-14. The loss was the fourth in five outings for Coach Waldon Skinner's team. Hugh Nolan, who hurled the last five innings, was charged with the loss. Shuman was the winner. John Keister had four hits in five trips for the Bobcats while Dorcil Kline and Archie Lennox banded three safeties each. Tupas and Warren shared six of the West Virginia team's 14 blows.

Courtney Fined

CURT COURTNEY, Washington catcher, has been fined $200 for insubordination by Manager Charley Dessen after a verbal exchange between the two in the dugout during a game in Cleveland. (International)

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 5 — (INS) — The sort of break Helen Hayes has wished for her talented son, 19-year-old James MacArthur, comes to him with Walt Disney. As soon as young Jimmie begins his summer vacation from Harvard, he'll join the Disney company on location for "The Light in the Forest."

Walt has been looking for months for a young actor to play the star role of True Son, a lad forced to return to his white parents after being brought up as a Delaware Indian, in Conrad Richter's classic adventure novel. Disney took one look at Jimmie in his screen debut in "The Young Stranger" and said, "That's the right boy."

As for Helen — she's just "bustin' her buttons" with pride over Jimmie and knowing his father, the late Charles MacArthur, as well as I did, I know he would be happy, too.

Our Hollywood "Fair Lady," Anne Rogers, flanked by representatives of the William Morris

Perkins' pal in "Tea and Sympathy." He appeared on TV and in summer stock before Richard Widmark brought him to the coast for "Time Limit." If he picks off "Ben Hur" — on which millions will be spent — Yale will be a mortal "lock" for stardom.

I was curious about seeing "Abandon Ship!," the picture Tyrone Power made for Richard Sale in London. I was on the set when they were filming one of the most dramatic scenes — the death of Lloyd Nolan.

Mary Anita and Richard and Ted Richmond invited some of their friends to see the picture at the Screen Directors Guild. It's a powerful story, but terribly tragic and almost shocking. Based on "Seven Waves Away," it's the true story of a ship captain who had to drown the weak to save the strong after a shipwreck, since the small lifeboat would only hold a limited number.

Later the guests, including Natalie Wood, Clifton Webb, Perle Mesta, the Walter Langs, Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, went to the Sale home for a late supper.

Snapshots of Hollywood collectibles at random: It's wedding bells for Sue Randall, Katharine Hepburn's protegee who played her first role in "The Desk Set," and Peter Powell, a U. S. Air Force jet pilot.

Mary Morrison's tossing a cocktail party at the Mocombo on Wednesday for Monte Proser. Looks serious between Doodles Weaver and Rita Green who are holding hands almost nightly at the Sportsman's Lodge.

The title on Jesse L. Lasky's upcoming book, "I Blow My Own Horn," doesn't mean he's bragging. It comes from the fact that he's a cornet player — still plays it for relaxation.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Be Yourself!

Are You Miss Somebody, or Miss Everybody? The "somebody" I'm talking about is the charming woman with individuality, who expresses her personal point of view intelligently, and who profits by her natural assets. The "everybody" is a carbon copy of a dozen other people.

Even though you are grown-up, you still may be tempted to be the copy-cat, by adopting the ways of dress or manner that you admire in another. Realize, however, that what is attractive for one is not attractive for all. Better to take stock of your good and poor points.

Your Assets

The pretty girl may have the edge in one respect, but relying on that edge, she may fall behind in the total picture of "Miss Somebody." While she is satisfied with her own good looks, you are conscious of the fact that there is more to charm than good looks alone. You are not copying her hair style, her make-up, her fashions — or anybody else's. You are keeping a firm hand on the hair brush, a sharp eye on the calorie chart, a warm iron on the clothes, and an alert mind on events. You are conscious of the importance of grooming, or posture, of a pleasant voice and bright conversation, and the complete result is more engaging than beauty alone.

Your Independence

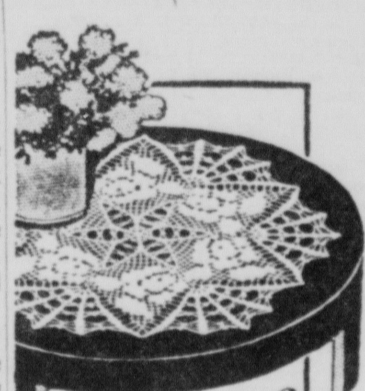

If you are "somebody," you are independent in thought as in appearance. Your political convictions, your personal opinions, are arrived at after weighing the pros and cons.

As you study fashions, decide what is best for you. As you read, arrive at your own conclusions. As you consider your voice, your manners, your grooming habits, decide if they're presenting you as an individual. Discard the copycat tendencies and develop your own personality potential.

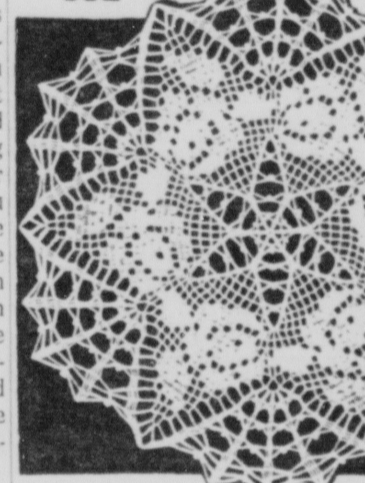

P. S. YOUR STEPS TO A SUCCESSFUL CAREER — A worthwhile investment in charm for every girl starting a business career — every girl or woman now in business who is eager to reach top-flight success. It tells you how to make that important "good impression" to get your job. Reveals secrets on how to hold your job. See how easy it is to choose a suitable wardrobe. Save time — uncertainty — needless worry through these short cut steps in charm that lead to YOUR SUCCESS. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose 10¢ coin, plus stamped, self-addressed return envelope for a copy of the booklet, YOUR STEPS TO A SUCCESSFUL CAREER. TOMORROW: Cutting a Figure. (Copyright 1957, John F. Dille Co.)

Today's Sermonette

semi-garnished state the house is redolent with memories; and every room and window and door has some story to tell.

Children's feet have raced over its halls: Its history is a cross section from life. Sorrow, affliction, sickness, death, anxiety, and perplexity this home has known; but the darkest shadows, the shadows of dishonor, disgrace, thank God, it has never known.

This little bit of heaven called home is a precious thing and as it drifts beyond our reach it seems to become more so.

On the tenth of April 1852 in Africa, an American died and was laid to rest in a lonely cemetery in Tunis. Thirty-one years later as an act of a grateful public, the United States dispatched a man of war to the African coast to return his body.

The arrival in an American harbor was welcomed by the firing of guns and a display of flags at half-mast.

His remains were carried to the nation's capital on a special train. There was a suspension of all business and adjournment of all departments of government and as the funeral procession passed down Pennsylvania Avenue the President, Vice President Cabinet, Congressmen, judges and officers of Army and Navy, along with masses of private citizens, stood with uncovered heads. To whom did they pay this homage? To a man who expressed the longing of his heart rather than the happy experience of his life. A man whose soul longed for the domestic tranquility of a pious home expressed in the words of the song "Home Sweet Home."

'Mid pleasures and palaces, Though we may roam, Be it ever so humble, There's no place like home.

The kind of home which calls forth this passionate sentiment is something more than a house of logs and stone, of tiles and posts and piers. It is a home built of loving deeds that stand a thousand years. And those loving deeds are born of a Christ-centered Home.

Exalt Christ in your home and your heart for the test of time demonstrates that when Christ is revered in home life, men and women, boys and girls are able to fulfill their high purpose in God's Kingdom. Wherever Christ appears on the domestic scene, life, is transformed from a matter of convenience to a matter of conscience, and selfishness gives way to self giving.

Exalt Christ in your heart and in your home and there will radiate forth that warmth, sincerity and love which this world so desperately needs today.

Our Hollywood "Fair Lady," Anne Rogers, flanked by representatives of the William Morris Company, was out on the MGM lot Friday to talk about starring in "The Boy Friend." MGM owns the rights and Anne played it on the London stage.

She's a real beauty with a lovely singing voice. Arthur Freed, who saw her opening night, is eager to get her on the lot, but then, she's had offers from Jack Warner and Harry Cohn, too. It all depends on when she'll be free of her commitment for "My Fair Lady." I'll wager we'll be talking about her as a top movie star next year.

Very much on the Q.T., on a closed stage, a new young actor named Yale Wexler is making a long test at MGM tomorrow for "Ben Hur." Producer Sam Zimbalist is so interested in Wexler that he's asked top director Sidney Franklin to direct the test, which gives you an idea of what they think of his chances.

Wexler, a tall, good looking and well groomed graduate of the Actors Studio, made his original mark on Broadway as Tony

Perkins' pal in "Tea And Sympathy." He appeared on TV and in summer stock before Richard Widmark brought him to the coast for "Time Limit." If he picks off "Ben Hur"—on which millions will be spent—Yale will be a mortal "lock" for stardom.

You are conscious of the importance of grooming, or posture, of a pleasant voice and bright conversation, and the complete result is more engaging than beauty alone.

Your Independence

If you are "somebody," you are independent in thought as in appearance. Your political convictions, your personal opinions, are arrived at after weighing the pros and cons.

As you study fashions, decide what is best for you. As you read, arrive at your own conclusions. As you consider your voice, your manners, your grooming habits, decide if they're presenting you as an individual. Discard the copycat tendencies and develop your own personality potential.

P. S. YOUR STEPS TO A SUCCESSFUL CAREER—A worthwhile investment in charm for every girl starting a business career—every girl or woman now in business who is eager to reach top-flight success. It tells you how to make that important "good impression" to get your job, reveals secrets on how to hold your job. See how easy it is to choose a suitable wardrobe. Save time—uncertainty—needless worry through these short cut steps in charm that lead to YOUR SUCCESS. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this news

semi-garnished state the house is redolent with memories; and every room and window and door has some story to tell.

Children's feet have raced over its halls: Its history is a cross section from life. Sorrow, affliction, sickness, death, anxiety, and perplexity this home has known; but the darkest shadows, the shadows of dishonor, disgrace, thank God, it has never known.

This little bit of heaven called home is a precious thing and as it drifts beyond our reach it seems to become more so.

On the tenth of April 1852 in Africa, an American died and was laid to rest in a lonely cemetery in Tunis. Thirty-one years later as an act of a grateful public, the United States dispatched a man of war to the African coast to return his body.

The arrival in an American harbor was welcomed by the firing of guns and a display of flags at half-mast.

His remains were carried to the nation's capital on a special train. There was a suspension of all business and adjournment of all departments of government and as the funeral procession passed down Pennsylvania Avenue the President, Vice President Cabinet, Congressmen, judges and officers of Army and Navy, along with masses of private citizens, stood with uncovered heads. To whom did they pay this homage? To a man who expressed the longing of his heart rather than the happy experience of his life. A man whose soul longed for the domestic tranquility of a pious home expressed in the words of the song "Home Sweet Home."

'Mid pleasures and palaces,
Though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, There's no place like home.

The kind of home which calls forth this passionate sentiment is something more than a house of logs and stone, of tiles and posts and piers. It is a home built of loving deeds that stand a thousand years. And those loving deeds are born of a Christ-centered Home.

Exalt Christ in your home and your heart for the test of time demonstrates that when Christ is revered in home life, men and women, boys and girls are able to fulfill their high purpose in God's Kingdom. Wherever Christ appears on the domestic scene, life is transformed from a matter of convenience to a matter of conscience, and selfishness gives way to self giving.

Exalt Christ in your heart and in your home and there will radiate forth that warmth, sincerity and love which this world so desperately needs today.

LaVale Fire Destroys Body Shop

Spectacular Blaze Burns Building Next To Fire Hall

The former Zimerla Body Repair Shop building in LaVale was destroyed last night in a spectacular fire which curtailed telephone service and electric power and halted east-west traffic on U.S. Route 40.

Volunteer firemen from five area companies battled the blaze which was discovered about 10:30 p.m.

A number of sharp explosions were touched off as the flames quickly spread through the old building which formerly housed the Clark Distillery.

No one was reported injured in the blaze, although damage — partially covered by insurance — was heavy.

A number of automobiles were reported to have been destroyed in the blaze, which could be seen in the sky for miles around.

Owned By Fire Company
Cromwell Zembower, of the LaVale Fire Department, which owns the property adjoining the fire hall, assisted in fire-fighting operations and said the fire had broken through the roof of the four-story concrete building before it was discovered and had a headstart prior to the arrival of the first firemen.

The gutted building had a frontage of about 120 feet along Route 40 and was purchased by the fire company about a year and a half ago.

Cause of the fire was undetermined by firemen last night and total damages were not determined.

The body repair shop has been operated by Eugene Grabenstein of Braddock Road since it was purchased by the fire company.

The spectacular fire was about two blocks from the site of another fire within the past year which destroyed the two glass companies in LaVale.

Phone Lines Out
The blaze knocked out most trunk telephone lines to Frostburg, Grantsville, Meyersdale, Somerset, Johnstown Pa., and to Piedmont, W. Va.

Robert G. Garner, local manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said partial service was available to all these points, and phone crews were trying to set up temporary lines early today.

Fire companies responding to the spectacular blaze included LaVale, Corriganville, Cresaptown, Clarysville and Bowman's Addition. Frostburg's volunteers got a standby request but had a problem of their own, a stable fire on Spring Street which destroyed the old building.

Probably as many as 1,000 spectators from LaVale and surrounding communities gathered to watch the LaVale blaze and the effective work of the volunteers.

The 80-by-120-foot four-story poured concrete building was rocked by a number of explosions, apparently caused by paint and varnish in the building.

Blood Donors Needed Today

A number of volunteers are needed today to give blood to the Red Cross Bloodmobile, so that Cumberland can reach its quota of 150 pints. A number of donors have scheduled appointments and all are urged to keep these appointments. In addition, an appeal is made for additional volunteers, especially new donors.

The Johnstown Blood Center has also asked that a special effort be made to obtain O-negative type blood, as this type is in very short supply.

The bloodmobile will be in operation at the Eagles Building, North Mechanic Street, from noon until 6 p. m. today.

Scouts 'Tired' After Journey Down Potomac

Young Canoeists Run Into 'Wilderness'

A group of "tired boys" who belong to Post 10, Explorer Scouts in LaVale, went to bed last night with a few sore muscles and pleasant recollections of a 48-mile canoe trip down the Potomac River over the weekend.

The 15 Explorers ran into no serious troubles en route, although now and then they ran into rocks. The water was high enough that the boys were able to paddle their way to Little Orleans from Blue Beach.

William G. Barger, chairman of post committees who went along for the ride, said he enjoyed the journey although the campers got "cold feet" on Saturday night when they went to bed just downstream from Paw Paw.

But the weather during the day was "beautiful" and there were no reports of sunburn cases. Mr. Barger said it is surprising how much wilderness is located from Paw Paw to Little Orleans, where the only indications of civilization are a number of railroad bridges which span the river.

The boys "ate hearty" after preparing their own meals along the way. They arrived at Little Orleans about 2:30 p. m. yesterday, then rode back home by auto.

Robert Moreland, assistant advisor, also took the trip with the explorers.

Kenneth M. Stone, advisor, who had the task of returning the canoes to Camp Potomac, ran into a little trouble after leaving U. S. Route 40 in the vicinity of Flintstone. The truck owned by the explorers and used to haul the canoes approached a steep hill and just wouldn't go any farther. This was a problem to be worked out by Mr. Stone and three of the explorers who went along to unload the canoes.

Today, there are state associations and branches all across the nation, in Hawaii, Canada and Korea.

The organization does not engage in politics or lobbying. It is in no sense a teachers' union, but is an educating association for educators, where ideas are exchanged, studies made and plans for improving education are worked out.

Teaching And Study
The members strive for more knowledge and understanding of how children grow, learn and feel. They seek opportunities to help citizens understand the reasons behind modern school programs. They study social forces within the community to determine how these affect children.

One of the programs sponsored by ACEI is a series of meetings once each month, two hours on a Saturday morning, for all new teachers. A series of these sessions is arranged for new elementary teachers, and another is arranged for first year teachers in high schools.

There is nothing compulsory about attending these sessions, but it has been found that teachers gladly give this extra time in order to be better teachers and to do a better job.

The high school group, under the direction of Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools, and Richard T. Rizer, supervisor of high schools, has 26 teachers attending regularly this year. The last session will be held May 11 on the subject, "A Preview and A Look Forward."

During the school year, such subjects as the following are outlined: "Philosophy of Public Education"; "Responsibility for Understanding Children"; "Behavior Problems of Children"; "When Does A

A Little Bit Of Heaven

By REV. CARL JOHNSON

A good home is a little bit of heaven on earth, and rich beyond any purely material wealth is the man who owns its pleasures.

There are of course those who place little value on the home and home life. Consider the story told by a real estate salesman about his encounter with a certain young man of the world.

He approached the young modern about the purchase of a home, and though he had become hardened to many things was startled at the reply. Home! What do I want with a home? I was born in a hospital, raised in a day nursery, educated in a boarding school, married in a church and Fortunately, though, such a cynical attitude is not the common thing. Rare indeed is the person who does not think of home with a warm and almost reverently sentimental contemplation.

One writer gives a touching account of a last farewell to a beloved home.

"This will be my last Sabbath in the old home. Years ago I used to try to imagine what it would be like when father and mother gone to their long home, the children scattered far abroad and living in homes of their own, and the homestead fallen into hands of aliens from its rich memories."

Strange, it is not, how brick, stone, timber...things made with hands as well as growing and living things...take hold upon one's life and seem to become a part of it? Yet so it is, and even in its semi-swept and mowed he was operating at his

Scattered Frost Expected In Allegany Again

(By The Associated Press)

Scattered frost was predicted for Maryland early this morning with warmer temperatures on the way for later today.

Sub freezing temperatures had been expected again in the westernmost county of Allegany, where orchardists already had a close brush with frost earlier this week.

Highs of 60 to 66 degrees were forecast for this afternoon in Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Carroll, with only a slight chance of frost tonight.

For the remainder of Maryland the Weather Bureau also predicted warmer weather. The Baltimore area could expect a high in the low 70s today.

Most Maryland apple and peach orchards escaped severe damage from a Friday night frost but there was considerable damage in some adjacent areas of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Only the timely use of smudge pots saved the crop in Allegany County as temperatures dipped to 27 degrees.

Mayor Fryer Is Seeking Re-Election

Primary Election Set Tomorrow

Charles H. Fryer, mayor of Ridgeley who is completing a two-year term, announced last night that he will be seeking re-election this year.

The primary election will be held tomorrow at 7:30 in the form of a mass meeting at Ridgeley High School. Mayor Fryer is urging all eligible voters to turn out for the election.

Mrs. Lenora Turner, town recorder for the past three years, will not seek re-election, according to Mayor Fryer, who said last night that three years ago Mrs. Turner was appointed to the position and two years ago was elected to the post.

Two of the councilmen of the community seek re-election. They are Alston "Ted" Dayton, head of the water department, and William Knierim, head of the police department.

In tomorrow's primary, eligible voters may nominate up to 10 persons for council, two for the office of mayor, and two for recorder.

The general election this year will be held Tuesday, June 4, from 7:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. (EDT).

Artmor Plastics Plant Enters New Phase Of Production And Local Development

Reinforced Molding Process Is Latest Added Operation

One of Cumberland's enterprising small industries, Artmor Plastics Corporation, Oldtown Road, which started operations here 10 years ago in a two-car garage, is expanding again.

Arthur Morgan, president of the firm, said the company is entering a new phase of production, is installing a 150-ton hydraulic press, and is adding an addition to the plant building.

The installation of this equipment has been necessitated by orders for over 100,000 new items, too large to be turned out in the usual manner at the plant. The order itself not only makes the new equipment mandatory, Mr. Morgan explained, but also makes it possible for the company to acquire equipment which has been needed for other planned operations.

The addition to the Oldtown Road building which was first occupied by the firm in 1952 is a temporary structure because the company, with an eye to considerable future expansion, does not intend to make further permanent installations at this location.

Several offers of acreage for a new plant are being considered, and nine communities have made attractive bids for the young and growing industry. Mr. Morgan said no decision has been reached, but as the business continues to grow, expansion becomes a necessity. He said orders have been mounting, and the little plant is hard-pressed to keep up with production schedules in existing quarters.

The new item about to come off the 150-ton press is a fiber glass fruit bowl. The press also can be used for making various types of reinforced molded items such as planters, lamp shades, utensils, lighting fixtures, signs and emblems, small furniture items, industrial parts and packaging items, and building materials of several types.

It is the field of building materials which seems the most attractive to this organization. Considerable development has been done in this line and the company holds patents on a number of

Local Histories Recall Visits Here By Henry Clay

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Henry Clay, who was selected last week by a special U.S. Senate committee for the Senate "Hall of Fame" as one of the five greatest Senators not now living, frequently visited Cumberland in his travels between his home in Kentucky and Washington.

Histories of Cumberland and Allegany County available for reference at the Cumberland Free Public Library report several amusing incidents concerning Clay's visits to Cumberland more than 100 years ago.

The History of Allegany County by James W. Thomas and Judge T. J. C. Williams at the library refers to a Cumberland visit by the famed Kentuckian in the spring of 1829.

"Shortly after Jackson's inauguration, on March 25, 1829, Henry Clay came to Cumberland, and that was the occasion of Whig rejoicing," the account begins.

"A committee mounted on horseback met the distinguished statesman at Plummer's Inn, six miles east of Cumberland, and escorted him to town. Roger Perry, who was at the head of the escort, delivered an address to Mr. Clay and Mr. Clay responded.

Political Overtones

"The Whig people had prepared a complimentary dinner to Mr. Clay at Slicer's Hotel in Cumberland. Mr. Perry presided at the dinner and David Lynn and John Davis were vice presidents. There was much speech making and a prodigious number of toasts were drunk. Few people voted the prohibition ticket and at a public dinner there were always 13 regular toasts in honor of the original states and an unlimited number of volunteers. At the dinner the fifth toast was 'The present administration — Providence once took charge of us; may it still cling to us.' Mr. Clay spoke about his temporary retirement from office and he was on his way to Lexington to live on his farm and practice law."

Another visit of Clay more than 20 years later is recalled in Will H. Lowdermilk's History of Cumberland. This account stated that on November 7, 1849, Henry Clay arrived from the west on his way to Washington. He came from Wheeling in one of the coaches of the "Good Intent" line and while passing through Uniontown it was upset by the carelessness of the driver.

Didn't Miss A Puff

"Mr. Clay was smoking a cigar at the time of the accident and preserved such a degree of self-possession that he continued to puff away very coolly, even when going over." Lowdermilk writes. The same history also discloses a Cumberland visit by another of the "Hall of Fame" Senators on August 26, 1824.

John C. Calhoun, the Secretary of War, and a Major Roberdeau

Of this total, seven were white males and four white females. The new total number of registered voters is now 12,758, which includes 6,598 white males, 150 colored males, 5,919 white females and 91 colored females.

Totals from the preceding month of March included 6,591 white males, 150 colored males, 5,915 white females and 91 colored females, which totaled 12,747.

Formal Charge Will Be Filed In Slaying

Chambers Attends Wife's Funeral

James M. Chambers, 45-year-old B&O brakeman, of 324 Arch Street, will be formally charged this morning in the Thursday shooting slaying of his wife, Virginia Pearl Chambers.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher said last night a warrant will be procured today from one of the local trial magistrates. He did not say what the charge would be.

Chambers, who has been in City Jail since Thursday night, will then be taken to Allegany County Jail and his counsel will arrange for further proceedings.

Yesterday afternoon City Police Detective Thomas J. See and Officer William Valentine accompanied Chambers to his wife's funeral, which was held at the Hafer Funeral Home.

Rev. Adam E. Grim, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, officiated and interment was in Hillcrest Burial Park.

Pallbearers were Melvin Fields, James Leasure, Ned Joyce, John Lindeman, William Fletcher and Forrest Corley. Survivors of Mrs. Chambers include a sister, Mrs. Zella Johnston, city.

Since his arrest on Thursday evening shortly after the shooting at his home, Chambers has been held on an open charge.

He was questioned by Sgt. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the Maryland State Police, but no statement has been signed. Chambers has not denied that he was responsible for the shooting, according to the state's attorney's office.

Also questioned in the case was Clarence Broadstock of St. Louis, a brother of Mrs. Chambers, who was at the home at the time of the shooting, and the victim's eldest son, who is 13 years old.

It was disclosed that Broadstock signed a statement.

Report Given On Sanitation

Favorable weather during March allowed the Allegany County Health Department to carry on a number of sanitation activities.

J. B. Dowling, chief sanitarian, said the program is progressing satisfactorily in all branches of sanitation, and that some 550 calls were received and 512 field trips made during March.

Among the field trips were 121 on sewage, 113 nuisance, 78 dairy farms, 69 food establishments, 26 garbage and 20 cafeteria inspections.

Mr. Dowling pointed out that in promotional work there were 173 conferences, as well as a public lecture.

The number of samples collected for analysis included: water 159; milk, 359 and swab, 156. Some 55 septic tanks were installed in the county under Health Department supervision.

Two water supplies were improved, 136 milk licenses issued, and one new milk house and two approved privies were installed.

Scattered Frost Expected In Allegany Again

(By The Associated Press)

Scattered frost was predicted for Maryland early this morning with warmer temperatures on the way for later today.

Sub freezing temperatures had been expected again in the westernmost county of Allegany, where orchardists already had a close brush with frost earlier this week.

Highs of 60 to 66 degrees were forecast for this afternoon in Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Carroll, with only a slight chance of frost tonight.

For the remainder of Maryland the Weather Bureau also predicted warmer weather. The Baltimore area could expect a high in the low 70s today.

Most Maryland apple and peach orchards escaped severe damage from a Friday night frost but there was considerable damage in some adjacent areas of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Only the timely use of smudge pots saved the crop in Allegany County as temperatures dipped to 27 degrees.

Local Histories Recall Visits Here By Henry Clay

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Henry Clay, who was selected last week by a special U.S. Senate committee for the Senate "Hall of Fame" as one of the five greatest Senators not now living, frequently visited Cumberland in his travels between his home in Kentucky and Washington.

Histories of Cumberland and Allegany County available for reference at the Cumberland Free Public Library report several amusing incidents concerning Clay's visits to Cumberland more than 100 years ago.

The History of Allegany County by James W. Thomas and Judge T. J. C. Williams at the library refers to a Cumberland visit by the famed Kentuckian in the spring of 1829.

"Shortly after Jackson's inauguration, on March 25, 1829, Henry Clay came to Cumberland, and that was the occasion of Whig rejoicing," the account begins.

"A committee mounted on horseback met the distinguished statesman at Plummer's Inn, six miles east of Cumberland, and escorted him to town. Roger Perry, who was at the head of the escort, delivered an address to Mr. Clay and Mr. Clay responded.

Political Overtones

"The Whig people had prepared a complimentary dinner to Mr. Clay at Slicer's Hotel in Cumberland. Mr. Perry presided at the dinner and David Lynn and John Davis were vice presidents. There was much speech making and a prodigious number of toasts were drunk. Few people voted the prohibition ticket and at a public dinner there were always 13 regular toasts in honor of the original states and an unlimited number of volunteers. At the dinner the fifth toast was 'The present administration — Providence once took charge of us; may it still cling to us.' Mr. Clay spoke about his temporary retirement from office and he was on his way to Lexington to live on his farm and practice law."

Another visit of Clay more than 20 years later is recalled in Will H. Lowdermilk's History of Cumberland.

This account stated that on November 7, 1849, Henry Clay arrived from the west on his way to Washington. He came from Wheeling in one of the coaches of the "Good Intent" line and while passing through Uniontown it was upset by the carelessness of the driver.

Didn't Miss A Puff

"Mr. Clay was smoking a cigar at the time of the accident and preserved such a degree of self-possession that he continued to puff away very coolly, even when going over." Lowdermilk writes. The same history also discloses a Cumberland visit by another of the "Hall of Fame" Senators on August 26, 1824.

Two Area Men Hospitalized In Highway Crash

Wilbur Boit, 24, Reported 'Critical'

A 24-year-old Romney, W. Va., area youth is reported in "critical" condition at Memorial Hospital and another youth is "fair," both suffering injuries sustained in a one-car crash about midnight Saturday near Romney.

Wilbur Boit sustained a head injury and is reported critical. In fair condition is Odell Smith, 22, of RD 1, Paw Paw, W. Va., who is suffering from facial lacerations and possible spinal injuries. X-rays have been taken.

West Virginia State Police, who were unable to question the young men at the hospital yesterday because of their conditions, said one of them was thrown from the car while the other was partially thrown from the vehicle.

The accident occurred about four miles east of Romney on U.S. Route 50 when the driver failed to negotiate a left turn. When the car went out of control it rammed into a shale and rock embankment, careened diagonally across the highway, struck the opposite embankment and turned over, landing on its top.

The men were taken to the hospital in an ambulance. Attaches said last night that about this time last year, Boit was critically injured in another highway accident and recovered.

Artmor Plastics Plant Enters New Phase Of Production And Local Development

Reinforced Molding Process Is Latest Added Operation

One of Cumberland's enterprising small industries, Artmor Plastics Corporation, Oldtown Road, which started operations here 10 years ago in a two-car garage, is expanding again.

Arthur Morgan, president of the firm, said the company is entering a new phase of production, is installing a 150-ton hydraulic press, and is adding an addition to the plant building.

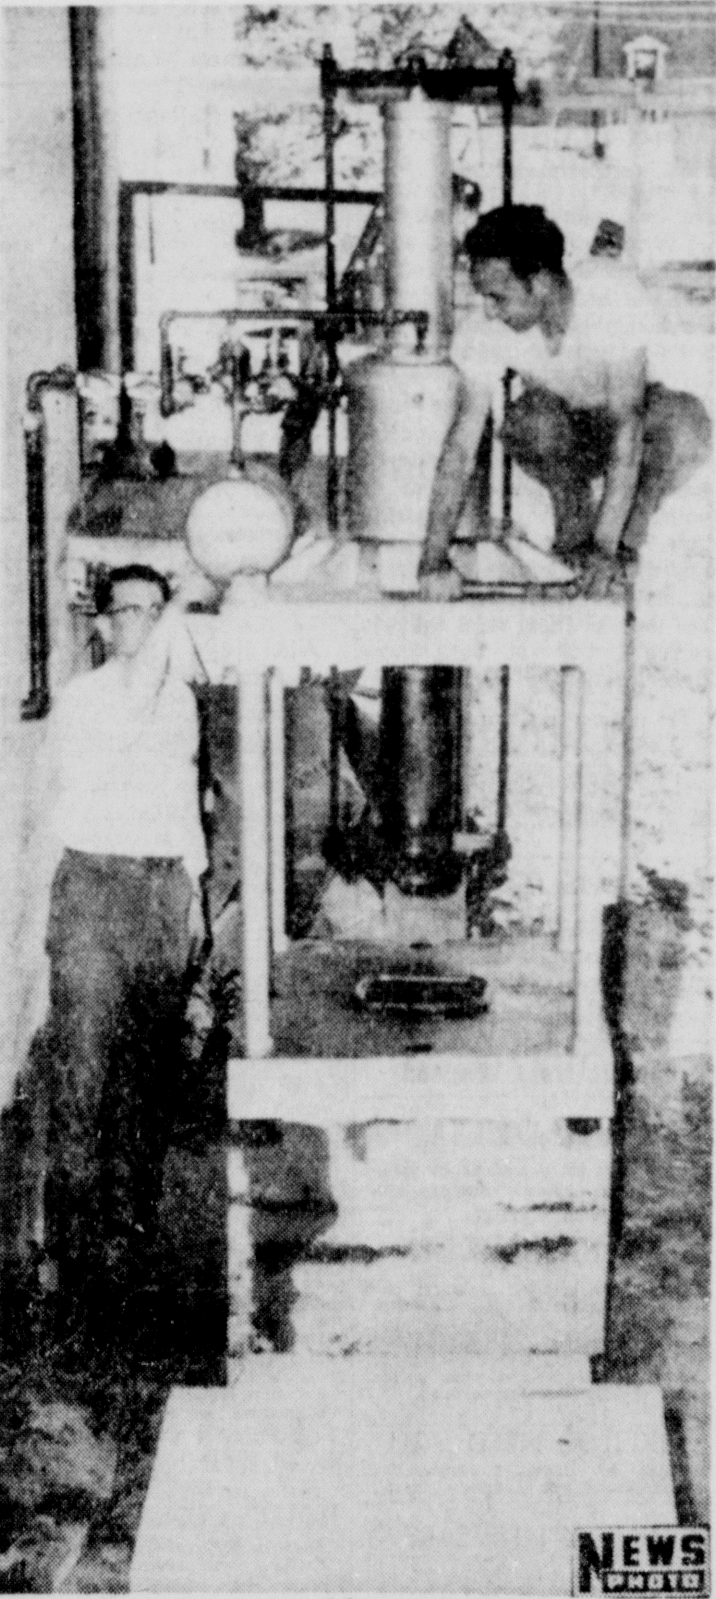

The installation of this equipment has been necessitated by orders for over 100,000 new items, too large to be turned out in the usual manner at the plant. The order itself not only makes the new equipment mandatory, Mr. Morgan explained, but also makes it possible for the company to acquire equipment which has been needed for other planned operations.

The addition to the Oldtown Road building which was first occupied by the firm in 1952 is a temporary structure because the company, with an eye to considerable future expansion, does not intend to make further permanent installations at this location.

Several offers of acreage for a new plant are being considered, and nine communities have made attractive bids for the young and growing industry. Mr. Morgan said no decision has been reached, but as the business continues to grow, expansion becomes a necessity. He said orders have been mounting, and the little plant is hard-pressed to keep up with production schedules in existing quarters.

The new item about to come off the 150-ton press is a fiber glass fruit bowl. The press also can be used for making various types of reinforced molded items such as planters, lamp shades, utensils, lighting fixtures, signs and emblems, small furniture items, industrial parts and packaging items, and building materials of several types.

It is the field of building materials which seems the most attractive to this organization. Considerable development has been done in this line and the company holds patents on a number of

NEW HYDRAULIC PRESS—This hydraulic press, 150 ton capacity, almost two-stories high, is the newest piece of equipment to be added to the Artmor plastic plant on Oldtown Road. It is installed on a heavy concrete base in rear of the plant, and a temporary structure is being built around it. Shown on the press helping with the assembly is Ray Logue of Hyndman, chief patternmaker at the plant. Standing beside the machine is Marion Nesselrodt of Chaneyville, Pa., shop foreman. The press will increase production and open up several new fields at the local plastics industry.

Since his arrest on Thursday evening shortly after the shooting at his home, Chambers has been held on an open charge.

He was questioned by Sgt. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the Maryland State Police, but no statement has been signed. Chambers has not denied that he was responsible for the shooting, according to the state's attorney's office.

Also questioned in the case was Clarence Broadstock of St. Louis, a brother of Mrs. Chambers, who was at the home at the time of the shooting, and the victim's eldest son, who is 13 years old.

It was disclosed that Broadstock signed a statement.

Report Given On Sanitation

Favorable weather during March allowed the Allegany County Health Department to carry on a number of sanitation activities.

Among the field trips were 123 on sewage, 113 nuisance, 78 dairy farms, 69 food establishments, 26 garbage and 20 cafeteria inspections.
